Cold Line of Defense in Cold War

KEFLAVIK, Iceland (AP) — It may be a cold climate here, just below the Arctic Circle, but Iceland seethes with warm military activity all the same.

According to a briefing officer of the big United States air contingent stationed at this North Atlantic Treaty Organization base, in the event of war, Iceland becomes a strategic key, because the decisive opening moves at sea would probably be in the northeast Atlantic.

Meanwhile, military forces of the Soviet Union and the United States play an uninterrupted "I-spy" game with each other all around Iceland.

Scarcely a day goes by that Soviet air, surface or underwater surveillance craft are not spotted by patrol planes from this base on Iceland's southwest tip. The Americans counter with constant aerial observation and fighter interceptor planes on a five-minute alert. Reporters who stopped off here on a flying visit to ships engaged in NATO's recent Silver Tower exercise at sea at an officer of the big United States air contingent stationed at this North Atlantic Treaty Organization base, in the event of war, Iceland becomes a strategic key, because the decisive opening moves at sea would probably be in the northeast Atlantic.

They also got an eyebrow-lifter at the way Russian warcraft have moved in on the middle of the Atlantic, generally regarded as the private preserve of the Western countries.

A particularly striking illustration of this was a movie sequence taken from an American plane of a Russian heavy cruiser, about the size of a wartime German pocket battleship, refueling in routing fashion from a supply ship with the Icelandic-coast visible 10 or 12 miles in the background.

In the last year Keflavik-based aircraft have made 220 separate contacts with submarines, undoubtedly Russian, some identified through electronic gear as carrying ballistic missiles. The long-range Russian Bear and Badger reconnaissance planes are often seen close to Iceland, and the Bear is known to have prowled on as far as the offshore waters of Labrador.

Scores of Russian trawlers fish off Iceland. Many are equipped with radar equipment designed for more than fisheries work.

During the Silver Tower exercise to the south and east of Iceland, ships of Canada and other NATO nations were continually under close observation from Russian ships, planes and probably submarines. About 18 surface vessel were counted. "There's a definite trend in Russian operations being pushed out greater distances from their shores as they get more and more sophisticated equipment," says Rear Adm. Frank B. Stone, the U. S. Navy commander of NATO's Iceland defense force.

Iceland is about 2,500 air miles from Russia, but its position on the map gives it considerably more strategic importance than this suggests. It is astride the sea lanes that the Russian fleet would have to burst through to get into the Atlantic, and it also is on the great-circle route between Europe and North America.

To meet contingencies both ways, the NATO force here is equipped with both anti-submarine planes and fighter-interceptors to take care of air aggressors.

CB Club Helps Deserted Miner Family of Nine

MINER — An appeal for food, clothing and furniture for a deserted mother of eight children ranging from 11 months to 16 years has met with some response.

Food for the family was received from the Welfare Office in Benton and from neighbors. Some furniture has been donated, but chairs, curtains, chest of drawers, rugs and clothes are needed.

The father reportedly left town recently when an insurance settlement check arrived. One of the boys had been struck by an automobile recently.

A neighbor who learned of the woman's plight informed a member of the Boothell Citizens Band Radio Club and CB members ran the appeal yesterday. The family has been living off the earnings of the oldest boy who has a part-time job after school.

The only furniture in the house when the father left was a mattress, a refrigerator, a cook stove, and a table made by propping a piece of metal on a couple of coke cases. There were no chairs in the house.

Five of the eight boys are in school. Three are home. The mother reportedly said they moved here about five weeks ago from Florida, but they have no intention of returning to Florida, because there is nothing better awaiting them there.

Persons wishing to help the family should call 471-5049.

Three Sikeston Girls Queen Candidates

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Three Sikeston coeds are among 12 nominees for homecoming queen at Southeast Missouri State College.

Students at the college went to the polls to designate their choice Wednesday but the results of the election will not be announced until the night of Nov. 1.

The queen will be crowned that night, then reign over activities Nov. 2. These include a morning parade through downtown Cape Girardeau, a football game in the afternoon, and a dance at night.

The Sikeston coeds, who are candidates, are Misses Sue Scott of 4929 Ninth Ave., S., Gale Skalsky of 228 Murray Lane, and Judith Matthews of 724 Davis.

Miss Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Scott, is a senior majoring in English and minoring in French. She is a member of the student personnel advisory committee.

Alpha Chi Omega social sorority, the Association of Women Students, and Wakapa women's honorary. She was also chosen for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Miss Skalsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Skalsky, is a senior majoring in speech correction and minoring in French. She is a member of the all-college judicial board, Alpha Chi Omega social sorority, and Kappa Delta Pi, education society. She was named sweetheart of Sigma Tau Gamma calendar girl.

Miss Matthews, daughter of James A. Matthews and Mrs. William Williams of Quincy, Ill., is a junior majoring in nursing. She is a member of the orientation steering committee, Alpha Delta Pi social sorority, and the Association of Women Students. She has been listed on the dean's list and was chosen Miss Cape Girardeau of 1968.

Apollo 7 Brought Ashore

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Apollo 7, whose 11-day space flight was accompanied by the curiosity of millions, was quietly brought ashore here today and unceremoniously loaded onto a truck for the last leg of its momentous journey.

Only a few bystanders were at dockside when the golden, gleaming spacecraft arrived aboard the carrier USS Essex to which it had been brought after splashing down Tuesday in the Atlantic.

There was none of the excitement today that welcomed earlier spacecraft ashore at such points as Mayport, Fla., when a crane lifted Apollo 7, tilting it slightly and spilling gallons of water from its blackened heat shield.

Officials said the Apollo 7 could have absorbed as much as 2,000 gallons during the short period it was afloat off Bermuda before it was carried by helicopter to the Essex.

Not even its three-man crew — Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Lt. Col. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham — was on hand today. They were flown Wednesday to Cape Kennedy.

Apollo 7 Heroes Meet With Next Flight's Crew

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's Apollo 7 space heroes, back from 11 days in orbit, met informally here today with three other astronauts who may fly around the moon at Christmas.

Apollo 7 pilots Walter M. Schirra Jr., Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham then continued in-depth discussions with technical experts attempting to determine whether Apollo 8 should get the nod to rocket moonward or make another earth orbital voyage.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said the Apollo 7 crew and pilots of Apollo 8 — Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr. and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders — met informally in crew quarters, along with several other astronauts involved with Apollo 7 and upcoming flights.

More formal meetings are scheduled between the Apollo 7 and Apollo 8 crews next week at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Tex., when the astronauts discuss in detail how all spacecraft systems operate.

Today's meetings with technical experts primarily concentrated on the Oct. 11 launching of Apollo 7 aboard a Saturn IB rocket and rendezvous in earth orbit a day later between Apollo 7 and the upper stage of their booster.

Meanwhile, the Apollo 7 spacecraft arrived at Norfolk, Va., today aboard its prime recovery ship, the aircraft carrier Essex, en route to the Downey, Calif., plant of North American Rockwell Corp., prime Apollo spacecraft contractor, for detailed study.

Ted Kennedy Calls For Repudiation of Wallaces Party

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy invoked the names of his late brothers today in calling for repudiation of George C. Wallace's third party "for the health of our country and our future as a nation."

He said he was addressing his plea to voters drawn toward the former Alabama governor after supporting President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, both of whom were assassinated.

"President Kennedy defended America against the extremists," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "George Wallace is in league with them."

"Robert Kennedy stood for reconciliation between the the Democratic national candidates, without naming them, then devoted the rest of his speech to a sharp attack on Wallace and his American Independent party.

"It is not enough that this movement be defeated, it must be repudiated," Kennedy said. "A significant vote this year would turn this movement into a permanent party of division and hate, seeking to elect mayors and congressmen as well as presidents," he told his audience.

"The third party is organized, directed and underwritten by the extremist movement, which is using the party as a vehicle to power" he added.

Wallace's forces anticipate strong support from rank-and-file union members throughout the country.

In his prepared remarks, Kennedy made a brief reference at the outset to his support for

Recovery May Buy 27 Lots

Recovery Inc., the non-profit corporation founded more than a year ago to improve substandard housing, voted to explore the possibility of purchasing 27 lots in Sunset Addition in a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the city administration building.

Mayor Kendall Sikes urged the organization to investigate the purchase, although it may not be a paying proposal.

Houses are on most of the lots and almost all of the housing is substandard, Sikes explained. If the organization could buy the property, then gradually some of this blight could be removed.

Sikes stressed that no one would be put out on the street, but when the families occupying the houses move, the dilapidated building could be torn down.

City Manager W. Raymet Miller explained that about seven houses have been condemned for occupancy by the city in Sunset Addition during the year. The houses still stand and are hazards to health and become havens for rats.

Miller said the city authority in demolishing private property is limited. An owner can tie the city up in court for several years if he wants to. But if Recovery would own this property, demolishing the property after the occupants move would be no problem, he added.

Sam Gibson said that four foundations have been poured and work is progressing on four three-bedroom houses Recovery is building in Sunset Addition. Loans for the houses are FHA guaranteed. They are expected to cost the occupants about $90 per month. Recovery has a fifth lot in Sunset and voted to proceed with plans to have a house built on it.

Charles Mitchell reported that he is awaiting a contract from Kirsner & Associates representative Jack Dickerson of Cape Girardeau, so a rent-supplement project to include 50 to 100 houses can be built under the 221 d3 program.

Police Report Three Arrests

Sikeston police reported three arrests today.

Small Plane Hijacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The small plane hijacked to Cuba Wednesday is on its way back to Florida, state department officials reported today.

They said the craft left Havana at mid-morning. The Havana newspaper Granma had reported the plane would be permitted to return to the United States after processing.

The hijacker remained unidentified, but the pilot was Charles Victor Oliveros, an American. The pilot said the passenger hired and plane to take him from Key West to Dry Tortugas, the newspaper reported.

The hijacker took over the radio out of Key West Wednesday to say he was seizing control of the plane, a Cessna 177. The plane landed at Jose Marti International Airport near Havana Thursday afternoon.

Eagleton Views Inflation Curbs

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — It will require the complete cooperation of government, business and labor to stem inflation, Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton said today.

Eagleton, Democratic nominee for U.S. senator, said he believes inflation can be slowed without damage to the economy.

"To do so will require that those in government adopt and implement prudent and responsible fiscal policies. It will also require prudence and responsibility on the part of business and labor in making decisions that effect the entire economy," Eagleton said.

Close Friend of Lynda Robb Lands USIA Job Month After Personnel Cuts Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Warrie Lynn Smith, a close friend of President Johnson's oldest daughter, is being sent to Chile as a U.S. Information Agency officer even as scores of USIA officers are being recalled from overseas.

Miss Smith, a frequent guest at the White House, was maid of honor when Lynda Bird Johnson married Marine Capt. Charles Robb last December. She and Mrs. Robb earlier had been roommates at the University of Texas.

Her appointment as a foreign service reserve officer came last February, less than a month after President Johnson ordered a reduction in government employment overseas in a move to reduce the U.S. balance of payments deficit.

spokesman said, the agency's 2,100-man officer corps has been reduced by 89. Sixty USIA officers have been transferred back to Washington from foreign posts, he said, and further cuts are planned.

In his January directive, the President also ordered all department and agency heads to "reduce official travel outside the United States to the minimum consistent with the orderly conduct of the government's business."

The USIA confirmed, in response to an inquiry, that Miss Smith was being assigned as assistant cultural affairs officer in Santiago, and disclosed she will visit four capitals en route to Chile. She will leave Washington Nov. 4.

There are three categories of foreign service officers in the USIA:

1. Foreign Service Officer. He gets his appointment only after passing a rigorous competitive examination.

2. Foreign Service Staff Officer. He, too, must pass a foreign service entrance examination prior to appointment.

3. Foreign Service Reserve Officer. No competitive exam is required. The applicant fills out the necessary papers, goes before a panel of foreign service officers and takes a language aptitude test.

There have been only six appointments, including that of Miss Smith, in the third category since Jan. 1. The other five all had extensive experience and entered the service at grades paying up to $25,000 a year.

Reserve officers receive the same pay and allowances as foreign service officers.

In a government booklet entitled "The Foreign Service of the United States," reserve officers are described as "persons with highly specialized skills not readily available in the foreign service who serve for limited periods."

"With rare exceptions," it adds, "a candidate for a foreign service reserve appointment must have passed his 31st birthday..."

Miss Smith is one of the "rare exceptions." She is 24. Age 31 is mentioned in the booklet, an official said, because that is the cutoff age for eligibility to take the competitive examination required for regular foreign service officers.

Humphrey Pledges to Work on U.S.-Soviet Relations; Nixon Rejects Debate Proposal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey pledged efforts today to reduce the "balance of terror" in U.S.-Soviet relations if elected president and said he favors a supervised worldwide reduction in arms and military spending.

But Republican Richard M. Nixon charged Humphrey is too talkative for delicate diplomacy abroad and said the Democrat's political beliefs and philosophy "are hopelessly inadequate" for crises at home.

Third party candidate George C. Wallace, meanwhile, said he'd welcome an hour-long televised Nixon-Humphrey debate so long as he got 30 minutes television time the following night.

But Nixon's camp said Wallace's proposal doesn't change a thing and the debate matter is "closed."

Humphrey said today he supports early U.S.-Soviet talks to end the missile race and beyond — "supervised and world-wide" — "safeguarded" — reductions in arms and military spending.

"We cannot live forever in a world where our safety, and our security depend on a precarious balance of terror," he said in remarks prepared for an appearance before clergymen in Los Angeles.

Nixon assailed Humphrey Wednesday as a man who has "been unable to mind his tongue when delicate negotiations are going on" and then called him the last hope at home "of the philosophy of statism, of the philosophy of centralism and permissiveness."

The political beliefs and philosophy of Hubert Humphrey are hopelessly inadequate for the crises of our times," Nixon said in Grand Rapids, Mich. "Their Nation" program Sunday night failure is written in the bitterness, and divisiveness and violence of American life today."

Nixon offered no personal comment on Wallace's Nixon-Humphrey debate proposal but a Nixon aide said Wallace obviously was seeking a way to get free television time.

"It doesn't change a thing," said press aide Ron Ziegler. "Our position has been that we will not enter into any form of debate that would provide a forum for Wallace."

Wallace made the proposal in Roanoke, Va. He said 30 minutes the night after the Nixon-Humphrey debate would be all he'd need to "fix both of them."

Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, sent telegrams inviting both Humphrey and Nixon to appear on a special "Face the Nation" program Sunday night at 9 p.m. EDT in line with Wallace's proposal.

In other political developments: Wallace to Ku Klux Klanism who harassed Polish and other ethnic groups in New England in the 1920s. "We've got to beat him so badly," Muskie said in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., "that his kind and his message is never heard from again in America."

Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, the GOP vice presidential candidate, said in Joplin, Mo.: "If there's ever a time for violence, it's in the attack on crime."

Curtis E. LeMay, the American Independent vice presidential candidate, said he favors birth control and legal abortion. "I'm as religious a person as anyone," he said in Birmingham, N. Y., "but I think the good Lord put us on this earth to think a bit for ourselves."

More formal meetings are scheduled between the Apollo 7 and Apollo 8 crews next week at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Tex., when the astronauts discuss in detail how all spacecraft systems operate.

Today's meetings with technical experts primarily concentrated on the Oct. 11 launching of Apollo 7 aboard a Saturn IB rocket and rendezvous in earth orbit a day later between Apollo 7 and the upper stage of their booster.

Meanwhile, the Apollo 7 spacecraft arrived at Norfolk, Va., today aboard its prime recovery ship, the aircraft carrier Essex, en route to the Downey, Calif., plant of North American Rockwell Corp., prime Apollo spacecraft contractor, for detailed study.

Apollo 7 Heroes Meet With Next Flight's Crew

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) - America's Apollo 7 space heroes, back from 11 days in orbit, met informally here today with three other astronauts who may fly around the moon at Christmastime.

Apollo 7 pilots Walter M. Schirra Jr., Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham then continued in-depth discussions with technical experts attempting to determine whether Apollo 8 should get the nod to rocket moonward or make another earth orbital voyage.

Pinkerton Quits C. of C. Job

Richard Pinkerton, executive manager of the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce, announced his resignation Wednesday effective Nov. 8.

Pinkerton, who has been in Sikeston 21 months, has accepted a position as executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce at DeLand, Fla., which has a population of 28,000. He will start Nov. 18.

"It has been a fine experience for me in Sikeston," he said. "One I wouldn't trade for anything." "One of the things that makes it hard to quit is that Sikeston has a great potential."

Ted Kennedy Calls For Repudiation of Wallaces Party

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy invoked the names of his late brothers today in calling for repudiation of George C. Wallace's third party "for the health of our country and our future as a nation."

He said he was addressing his plea to voters drawn toward the former Alabama governor after supporting President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, both of whom were assassinated.

"President Kennedy defended America against the extremists," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "George Wallace is in league with them."

In his prepared remarks, Kennedy made a brief reference to the Democratic national candidates, without naming them, then devoted the rest of his speech to a sharp attack on Wallace and his American Independent party.

"It is not enough that this movement be defeated, it must be repudiated," Kennedy said. "A significant vote this year would turn this movement into a permanent party of division and hate, seeking to elect mayors and congressmen as well as presidents," he told his audience.

"The third party is organized, directed and underwritten by the extremist movement, which is using the party as a vehicle to power," he added.

Recovery May Buy 27 Lots

Recovery Inc., the non-profit corporation founded more than a year ago to improve substandard housing, voted to explore the possibility of purchasing 27 lots in Sunset Addition in a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the city administration building.

Mayor Kendall Sikes urged the organization to investigate the purchase, although it may not be a paying proposal.

Houses are on most of the lots and almost all of the housing is substandard, Sikes explained. If the organization could buy the property, then gradually some of this blight could be removed.

Sikes stressed that no one would be put out on the street, but when the families occupying the houses move, the dilapidated building could be torn down.

City Manager W. Raymet Miller explained that about seven houses have been condemned for occupancy by the city in Sunset Addition during the year. The houses still stand and are hazards to health and become havens for rats.

Miller said the city authority in demolishing private property is limited. An owner can tie the city up in court for several years if he wants to. But if Recovery would own this property, demolishing the property after the occupants move would be no problem, he added.

Sam Gibson said that four foundations have been poured and work is progressing on four three-bedroom houses Recovery is building in Sunset Addition. Loans for the houses are FHA guaranteed. They are expected to cost the occupants about $90 per month. Recovery has a fifth lot in Sunset and voted to proceed with plans to have a house built on it.

Small Plane Hijacked

WASHINGTON (AP) - The small plane hijacked to Cuba Wednesday is on its way back to Florida, state department officials reported today.

They said the craft left Havana at mid-morning.

The Havana newspaper Grannha had reported the plane would be permitted to return to the United States after processing.

The hijacker remained unidentified, but the pilot was Charles Victor Oliveros, an American. The pilot said the passenger hired and plane to take him from Key West to Dry Tortugas, the newspaper reported.

The hijacker took over the radio out of Key West Wednesday to say he was seizing control of the plane, a Cessna 177. The plane landed at Jose Marti International Airport near Havana Thursday afternoon.

Humphrey Pledges to Work on U.S.-Soviet Relations; Nixon Rejects Debate Proposal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey pledged efforts today to reduce the "balance of terror" in U.S.-Soviet relations if elected president and said he favors a supervised worldwide reduction in arms and military spending.

But Republican Richard M. Nixon charged Humphrey is too talkative for delicate diplomacy abroad and said the Democrat's political beliefs and philosophy "are hopelessly inadequate" for crises at home.

Third party candidate George C. Wallace, meanwhile, said he'd welcome an hour-long televised Nixon-Humphrey debate so long as he got 30 minutes television time the following night.

But Nixon's camp said Wallace's proposal doesn't change a thing and the debate matter is "closed."

Humphrey said today he supports early U.S.-Soviet talks to end the missile race and beyond that favors worldwide "supervised and safeguarded" reductions in arms and military spending.

"We cannot live forever in a world where our safety, and our security depend on a precarious balance of terror," he said in remarks prepared for an appearance before clergymen in Los Angeles.

Nixon assailed Humphrey Wednesday as a man who has "been unable to mind his tongue when delicate negotiations are going on" and then called him the last hope at home "of the philosophy of statism, of welfarism, centralism and permissiveness."

The political beliefs and philosophy of Hubert Humphrey are hopelessly inadequate for the crises of our times," Nixon said in Grand Rapids, Mich. "Their failure is written in the bitterness, and divisiveness and violence of American life today."

Nixon offered no personal comment on Wallace's debate proposal but a Nixon aide said Wallace obviously was seeking a way to get free television time. "It doesn't change a thing," said press aide Ron Ziegler. "Our position has been that we will not enter into any form of debate that would provide a forum for Wallace."

Wallace made the proposal in Roanoke, Va. He said 30 minutes the night after the Nixon-Humphrey debate would be all he'd need to "fix both of them."

Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, sent telegrams inviting both Humphrey and Nixon to appear on a special "Face the Nation" program Sunday night at 9 p.m. EDT in line with Wallace's proposal.

Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, the GOP vice presidential candidate, said in Joplin, Mo.: "If there's ever a time for violence, it's in the attack on crime."

Curtis E. LeMay, the American Independent vice presidential candidate, said he favors birth control and legal abortion. "I'm as religious a person as anyone," he said in Birmingham, N. Y., "but I think the good Lord put us on this earth to think a bit for ourselves."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

In modern times there never has been as much independent thinking during a presidential year as in this fall of 1968.

It is true that the United States could develop a multiple party system, such as in France, and that chaos could develop if none of them could muster a majority.

There was rioting in the streets and turmoil in France before Charles de Gaulle became president. The comparison between France's troubles and this nation's turmoil in the streets is an uncomfortable one.

It is doubtful if the United States will make the mistake of developing a multiple party system, which could fragment and dilute the will of the people to the point where it would become impossible to determine what a majority wants.

The American people have been deeply disturbed by the lack of law and order and by those men in public life who were apologists for the rioters.

It has seemed that the country was coming apart of the seams and that no one in authority cared enough to prevent it.

It is to the credit of all people of all races and creeds that they were able to elect a president who was thought to be fair. Many pondered whether they would vote for the standard bearers of the two major political parties or turn to new leadership.

Although they represent quite different philosophies Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama exert a similar appeal in one sense.

Both represent new leadership. It is no wonder that they appeal to those who doubt whether old approaches will be effective to cope with the modern challenges to the American way of life.

It has long been apparent that the people belonging to some of the nation's principal groups haven't always voted alike.

No labor union leader or farm leader ever could deliver the labor or farm vote 100 per cent.

This election year is different in that the rank and file is not silent but is speaking out. These people not only have been thinking, they have been acting. Many are pursuing an independent course.

Farmers, who are as far removed from the rioting in the city streets as any citizens, nevertheless are concerned deeply by them. They are more interested in restoring law and order than they are in farm programs. Thus to their credits.

Union laborers are concerned about it, too, but they have more reason to be. They do not want to walk down unsafe streets and they don't want their wives beaten and raped by lawless gangs on the way to the grocery store.

Many of these industrial workers are more eager to restore law and order than to vote for the presidential candidate who promises to deliver the most favors to the union bosses.

Whenever the American people can be induced to act in behalf of the greatest number our society will move back to the position that made it great.

In modern times there has been too much voting for selfish reasons. It has benefitted the candidate, who promised the largest immediate handout of federal funds and favors to the nation's largest voting blocs. It has fed the flames of inflation, wedged the country into a serious money crisis and produced many other long range undesirable effects.

Everyone has some kind of bluff. A certain Sikeston man who had nothing at all to do all day had a habit of walking on the streets like a streak of lightning.

There are people who own a dog that could lie around the yard sleeping peacefully and make no trouble, but tie it up to insure that it will howl.

JUSTICE IN BALTIMORE

A public service has been performed by the Baltimore jury which found pacifist Catholics - two of them - guilty of charges growing out of the seizure and burning of draft board records.

The defendants were convicted of mutilating and destroying government records, hindering administration of the Selective Service Act and causing injury to government property. They had pleaded innocent, contending they were merely acting as pacifists, and their lawyers had sought to question the validity of the Vietnam war, or raised the issues of freedom of speech and religious beliefs.

This is an absurd defense. Whether they were protesting the Vietnam war flying to the moon or anything else, they had no right to take the law into their own hands. Neither intentions nor motives justify lawlessness.

Priests and all other clergymen have an obligation to give sound and lawful advice. By the nature of their calling, they are expected to set a good example for the community.

When they fail to do this, and instead become apostles of violence by openly defying the law, they have fallen not only as members of the clergy but also as citizens and deserve to be treated as criminals.

The nine "pacifists," who certainly do not reflect the great majority sentiment of Catholics, willfully violated the law. The law responded by prosecuting them. Justice has been served.

Some people spend borrowed money as freely as if they had earned it themselves.

The Colonel said: "If you can ever find a girl who'll give you her photo without apologizing for it, marry her!"

If you like babies, never notice them when their mother is present, unless you want to see her get out her handkerchief and wring their noses.

A little baby in the home, with teeth that come through hard, and colic, is not a source of as much annoyance as a girl of 12 or 14. That is the age when a girl is blind to everything but her own thoughts and they must be silly, because the only way she can express herself is in giggles. She may lock herself in her room and sit there thinking about nothing, and is likely to find her chief refuge in a looking glass into which she may stare for hours, finding in her reflection a friend who thoroughly understands her.

Actions of other drivers irritate you? Maybe it's time to check yours.

VACATION HAZARD

Accidents are more likely to happen to children when they are away from home in a strange environment. We suggest you supervise your child closely on vacation trips.

About all there is to love is that two people overlook the faults of each other.

When a boy away from home writes to his father, the words of affection are very near the words asking for more money.

THE TIME FOR CHANGE

There is never a period of time in which proposals to reform the state legislature meet with any widespread public enthusiasm or even any general response. But during the political season is perhaps the most opportune time to point up critical needs of the legislature in the hope that some candidates for the General Assembly will take the suggestions to heart and work for their advancement.

Speaking in Jefferson City the other day, an official of the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University observed with considerable insight: "At the heart of state reorganization lies reform of state legislatures." We concur.

Reform of the Missouri General Assembly has been under study for the past two sessions under a committee headed by State Rep. Richard J. Rabbitt of St. Louis, majority floor leader of the lower chamber.

Some changes have already been made as a result of the special committee's study; for example, in the next session all bills that are introduced will be printed by means of a computer system which will not only deliver copies in record fashion but will save the state about $100,000.

This is a good beginning, but much more needs to be done.

1. The state legislature would meet annually, rather than on a biennial schedule as has been followed, with Governor Hearnes additionally inaugurating a special session on the so-called "off-years."

2. Bills introduced in the session immediately following the election of legislators should not die at the end of the first year but be continued over into the next session, such as is the case in Congress.

3. Committees should not terminate after each session, but should continue on a year-round basis. (This needs some special limitations, but details can be spelled out through the legislative process.)

4. Adequate space for legislative offices and staff for committees would be made available.

5. Legislative procedures should be streamlined and modernized.

We concur with all of these recommendations, for with minor changes, the General Assembly is operating today in very much the same manner as it operated 100 years ago. A visitor from the last century would not find many changes in today's legislative procedures were he to visit Jefferson City when the General Assembly is in session.

The rate of growth of Missouri's state government has been remarkable in the past two decades. Since the present Missouri Constitution went into effect 23 years ago, 98 new state programs, agencies or institutions, having an annual cost of more than $100 million, have been created. The state's present governmental structure includes 107 offices, departments, divisions, boards and bureaus of administrative or policy-making character. This rate of growth most certainly points to be need for some progress and modernization in the legislative procedure - which, after all, is responsible for the creation of these services and which must devise the methods to finance and sustain them.

The time for legislative change in Missouri is right now.

NEW YORK (AP) — It all started innocently enough when they gave us the vote.
Who could have foreseen that, given this mile, women would inch their way into every other province previously exclusively male.

Now we've reached the ultimate in togetherness—the Boy Scouts of America have gone coed. The organization's executive board has voted to admit girls to its Explorer program.

What else could you expect in a country where a gentleman can safely offer a lady a cigar named Pat or Sandy, who is only if he has another left for himself; where nearly 400 mailmen are mailwomen, where the girls run million-dollar businesses, drive trucks, build houses, tinker with car engines and work as plumbers—at least on television!

I first became aware of the blurring of the line between women's work and men's work when my son was thrust protesting into a 7th grade sewing class. Later, when my daughter reached that stage in her schooling, she was placed in a metalworking course. The winds of change were blowing.

It wasn't long after this that boys and girls not only exchanged activities, but almost exchanged identities. The female of the species cut her hair severely short and adopted a pair of blue jeans and her brother's pea jacket as a standard outfit. Her brother, on the other hand, became the long-haired member of the family.

The trend soon spread to the adult world, where grown men now walk about with beads and chains around their necks, and their wives show up even at parties wearing pants suits.

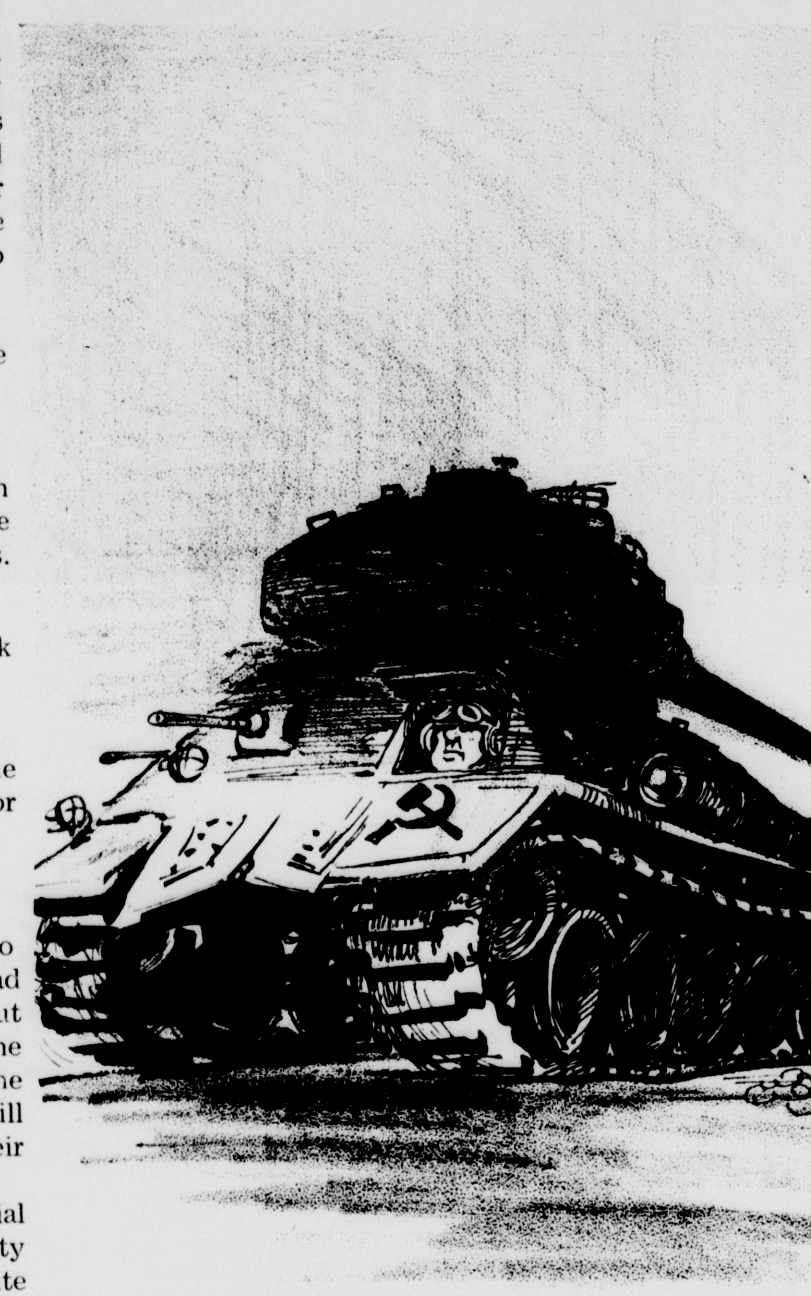

It's gotten to be somewhat of an embarrassing social problem. Introduced to an individual named Pat or Sandy, who is attired in slacks and jacket and sporting a hairdo just this side of a crewcut, should you talk about housekeeping or football?

At one time you could depend on the presence or absence of a pocketbook to put you on the right track, but the fashion leaders have the men toting them now.

Aside from the mandatory wearing of him and her buttons, I can suggest one other way to ease the identification muddle—the boys should dress in blue and the girls in pink.

WASHINGTON - One thing that puzzles those who are checking on vote fingling is how Rep. Richard Schweiker, Pennsylvania republican, should have missed eight roll-call votes on Sept. 16, but suddenly voted for a commission to establish a library on Negro history and culture. Especially puzzling is the fact that Schweiker at the time was in Buck Hill Falls, Pa.

Perhaps the answer is that Schweiker is now running for the Senate and that there is a tremendous block of Negro votes in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

At any rate, Schweiker arrived in Buck Hill Falls at 8 p.m. to address the Association of Pennsylvania Broadcasters. He left after 9 p.m. The house vote on which Schweiker was recorded as voting for the Negro library took place about 8 p.m.

Earlier that day Schweiker failed to answer a quorum call, then on a bill establish Biscayne National monument in Florida, he was recorded as being paired with Rep. Bertram Podell D-N.Y.

On a bill to promote health and safety in the building trades, which passed 197 to 136, Schweiker was reported as not voting.

When Rep. Durward Hall of Missouri made a point of order that no quorum was present, Schweiker again failed to answer his name.

The next roll call was on a bill aimed against check forgers in interstate commerce. It passed 328 to 4 with Schweiker not voting.

Then came a bill to reduce the number of fish protein concentrate experimental plants. This passed 218 to 104 with Schweiker not voting.

Then mysteriously out of the clear blue Schweiker voted for a commission on Negro history and culture—even though he was up in Pennsylvania.

After that Schweiker resumed his absentee record. On a bill creating a national wildlife refuge in the great swamp of

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

In modern times there never has been as much independent thinking during a presidential year as in this fall of 1968.

It is true that the United States could develop a multiple party system, such as in France, and that chaos could develop if none of them could muster a majority.

There was rioting in the streets and turmoil in France before Charles de Gaulle became president. The comparison between France's troubles and this nation's turmoil in the streets is an uncomfortable one.

It is doubtful if the United States will make the mistake of developing a multiple party system, which could fragment and dilute the will of the people to the point where it would become impossible to determine what a majority wants.

The American people have been deeply disturbed by the lack of law and order and by those men in public life who were apologists for the rioters.

It has seemed that the country was coming apart at the seams and that no one in authority cared enough to prevent it.

It is to the credit of all people of all races and creeds that they were disturbed and that they gave thought to their vote. Many pondered whether they would vote for the standard bearers of the two major political parties or turn to new leadership.

Although they represent quite different philosophies Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama exert a similar appeal in one sense.

Both represent new leadership. It is no wonder that they appeal to those who doubt whether old approaches will be effective to cope with the modern challenges to the American way of life.

It has long been apparent that the people belonging to some of the nation's principal groups haven't always voted alike.

No labor union leader or farm leader ever could deliver the labor or farm vote 100 per cent.

This election year is different in that the rank and file is not silent but is speaking out. These people not only have been thinking. They have been acting. Many are pursuing an independent course.

Farmers, who are as far removed from the rioting in the city streets as any citizens, nevertheless are concerned deeply by them. They are more interested in restoring law and order than they are in farm programs. Thus to their credits.

Union laborers are concerned about it, too, but they have more reason to be. They do not want to walk down unsafe streets and they don't want their wives beaten and raped by lawless gangs on the way to the grocery store.

Many of these industrial workers are more eager to restore law and order than to vote for the presidential candidate who promises to deliver the most favors to the union bosses.

This is good.

Whenever the American people can be induced to act in behalf of the greatest number our society will move back to the position that made it great.

In modern times there has been too much voting for selfish reasons. It has benefitted the candidate, who promised the largest immediate handout of federal funds and favors to the nation's largest voting blocs. It has fed the flames of inflation, wedged the country into a serious money crisis and produced many other long range undesirable effects.

Everyone has some kind of bluff. A certain Sikeston man who had nothing at all to do all day had a habit of walking on the streets like a streak of lightning.

There are people who own a dog that could lie around the yard sleeping peacefully and make no trouble, but tie it up to insure that it will howl.

JUSTICE IN BALTIMORE

A public service has been performed by the Baltimore jury which found pacifist Catholics - two of them priests - guilty of charges growing out of the seizure and burning of draft board records.

The defendants were convicted of mutilating and destroying government records, hindering administration of the Selective Service Act and causing injury to government property. They had pleaded innocent, contending they were merely acting as pacifists, and their lawyers had sought to question the validity of the Vietnam war, or raised the issues of freedom of speech and religious beliefs.

This is an absurd defense. Whether they were protesting the Vietnam war, flying to the moon or anything else, they had no right to take the law into their own hands. Neither intentions nor motives justify lawlessness.

Priests and all other clergymen have an obligation to give sound and lawful advice. By the nature of their calling, they are expected to set a good example for the community.

When they fail to do this, and instead become apostles of violence by openly defying the law, they have fallen not only as members of the clergy but also as citizens and deserve to be treated as criminals.

The nine "pacifists," who certainly do not reflect the great majority sentiment of Catholics, willfully violated the law. The law responded by prosecuting them. Justice has been served.

Globe Democrat

Some people spend borrowed money as freely as if they had earned it themselves.

The Colonel said: "If you can ever find a girl who'll give you her photo without apologizing for it, marry her!"

If you like babies, never notice them when their mother is present, unless you want to see her get out her handkerchief and wring their noses.

A little baby in the home, with teeth that come through hard, and colic, is not a source of as much annoyance as a girl of 12 or 14. That is the age when a girl is blind to everything but her own thoughts and they must be silly, because the only way she can express herself is in giggles. She may lock herself in her room and sit there thinking about nothing, and is likely to find her chief refuge in a looking glass into which she may stare for hours, finding in her reflection a friend who thoroughly understands her.

Actions of other drivers irritate you? Maybe it's time to check yours.

VACATION HAZARD

Accidents are more likely to happen to children when they are away from home in a strange environment. We suggest you supervise your child closely on vacation trips.

About all there is to love is that two people overlook the faults of each other.

When a boy away from home writes to his father, the words of affection are very near the words asking for more money.

THE TIME FOR CHANGE

There is never a period of time in which proposals to reform the state legislature meet with any widespread public enthusiasm or even any general response. But during the political season is perhaps the most opportune time to point up critical needs of the legislature in the hope that some candidates for the General Assembly will take the suggestions to heart and work for their advancement.

Speaking in Jefferson City the other day, an official of the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University observed with considerable insight: "At the heart of state reorganization lies reform of state legislatures." We concur.

Reform of the Missouri General Assembly has been under study for the past two sessions under a committee headed by State Rep. Richard J. Rabbitt of St. Louis, majority floor leader of the lower chamber.

Some changes have already been made as a result of the special committee's study; for example, in the next session all bills that are introduced will be printed by means of a computer system which will not only deliver copies in record fashion but will save the state about $100,000.

This is a good beginning, but much more needs to be done.

1. The state legislature would meet annually, rather than on a biennial schedule as has been followed, with Governor Hearnes additionally inaugurating a special session on the so-called "off-years."

2. Bills introduced in the session immediately following the election of legislators should not die at the end of the first year but be continued over into the next session, such as is the case in Congress.

3. Committees should not terminate after each session, but should continue on a year-round basis. (This needs some special limitations, but details can be spelled out through the legislative process.)

4. Adequate space for legislative offices and staff for committees would be made available.

5. Legislative procedures should be streamlined and modernized.

We concur with all of these recommendations, for with minor changes, the General Assembly is operating today in very much the same manner as it operated 100 years ago. A visitor from the last century would not find many changes in today's legislative procedures were he to visit Jefferson City when the General Assembly is in session.

The rate of growth of Missouri's state government has been remarkable in the past two decades. Since the present Missouri Constitution went into effect 23 years ago, 98 new state programs, agencies or institutions, having an annual cost of more than $100 million, have been created. The state's present governmental structure includes 107 offices, departments, divisions, boards and bureaus of administrative or policy-making character. This rate of growth most certainly points to be need for some progress and modernization in the legislative procedure - which, after all is responsible for the creation of these services and which must devise the methods to finance and sustain them.

The time for legislative change in Missouri is right now.

NEW YORK (AP) — It all started innocently enough when they gave us the vote.

Who could have foreseen that, given this mile, women would inch their way into every other province previously exclusively male.

Now we've reached the ultimate in togetherness—the Boy Scouts of America have gone coed. The organization's executive board has voted to admit girls to its Explorer program.

What else could you expect in a country where a gentleman can safely offer a lady a cigar only if he has another left for himself; where nearly 400 mailmen are mailwomen, where the gals run million-dollar businesses, drive trucks, build houses, tinker with car engines and work as plumbers—at least on television!

I first became aware of the blurring of the line between women's work and men's work when my son was thrust protestingly into a 7th grade sewing class. Later, when my daughter reached that stage in her schooling, she was placed in a metalworking course. The winds of change were blowing.

It wasn't long after this that boys and girls not only exchanged activities, but almost exchanged identities. The female of the species cut her hair severely short and adopted a pair of blue jeans and her brother's pea jacket as a standard outfit. Her brother, on the other hand, became the long-haired member of the family.

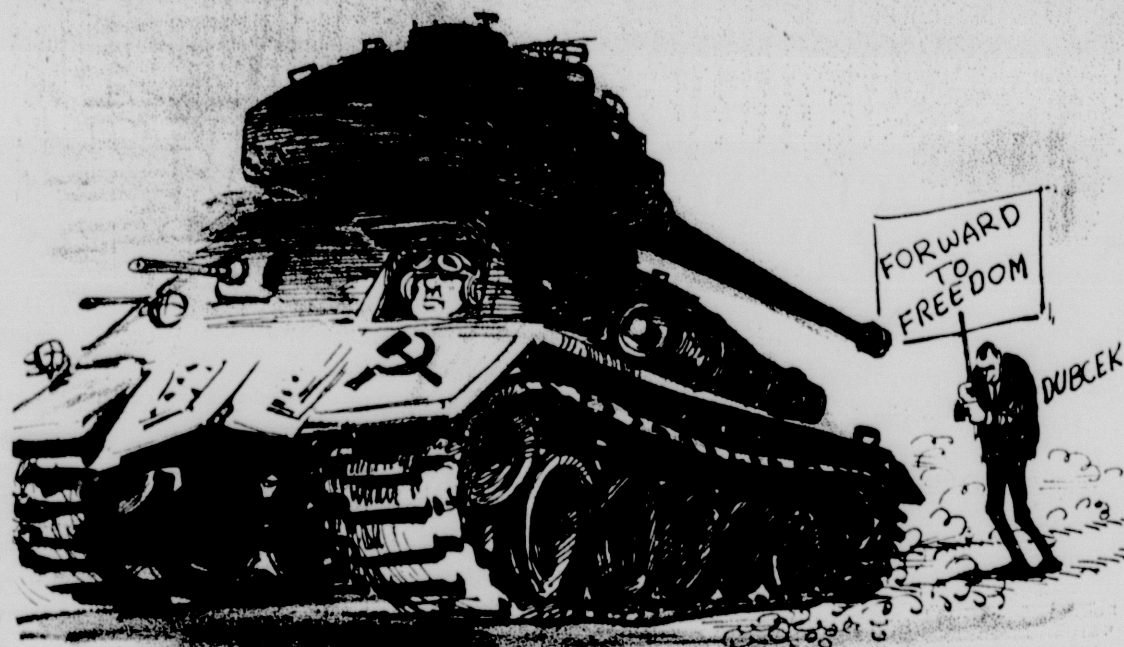

The trend soon spread to the adult world, where grown men now walk about with heads and chains around their necks, and their wives show up even at parties wearing pants suits.

It's gotten to be somewhat of an embarrassing social problem. Introduced to an individual named Pat or Sandy, who is attired in slacks and jacket and sporting a hairdo just this side of a crewcut, should you talk about housekeeping or football?

At one time you could depend on the presence or absence of a pocketbook to put you on the right track, but the fashion leaders have the men wearing of him and her buttons. I can suggest one other way to ease the identification muddle—the boys should dress in blue and the girls in pink.

NIXON'S PERSONAL DECISION: Decides Labor Vote Is Vital; Drives For It - and Joins a Union.

New York: — Dick Nixon may not yet have his solid gold card in a union. But he does have a gilt pasteboard which will do him fine until the metallic one rolls in.

The candidate picked up his pasteboard the other day while running scared on the labor front. So now he is an honorary member of the Musicians Federation in Rochester, N.Y., a center of classical music — though Mr. Nixon, by his own admission, is "not a very good pianist."

After considerable fretting over the labor vote seeping to George Wallace, Mr. Nixon put together a labor brain trust, whipped some speeches into shape, decided to storm up some plant gate literature — and talk to hundreds of second echelon labor leaders themselves, person to person, man to man, all barriers down.

This pilot project in eyeballing could have boomeranged in the few vote-shopping days left. But it didn't. Dick Nixon walked into the Holiday Inn suite right off the Rochester airport, shook hands with local leaders of the musicians, the barbers, and the metal trades. They were just a handful — a backers' (c.q.) dozen. And everybody loved everybody.

There was no awe, no awkwardness — just banter and a view of Dick Nixon rarely seen. Up front that afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 17, was Joe DeVitt, president of the local Musicians union, formerly that union's New York state president.

At his suggestion, his executive board had voted Mr. Nixon an honorary membership — and later had cleared it with the national American Federation of Musicians (AFL-CIO).

Mr. Nixon, obviously not unprepared, came into the motel room, introduced himself all around, and said to Mr. DeVitt: "I should be a member of your union, I play the piano."

"I know, Mr. President," replied Mr. DeVitt, practically closing out the election. "You should belong to our union. You are, however, a lousy piano player."

"I appreciate this," grinned the candidate. "I know I'm not very good, but am I as good as (Harry) Truman (holder of a solid gold card in the national Federation)?"

"No," responded DeVitt, "but we did not do well under Truman. Here's the card. This November you are going to be my president, but with this card I'm your president, so you'll have to behave yourself."

OPPOSITION, adverse circumstances, do not put brains into men, but they draw out what is in them.

NO TIME FOR VENTRILOQUISM

The ventriloquist who talks back and forth with the dummy placed on his knee can be highly entertaining. But when you come right down to it, this is simply a case of a man talking to himself.

Ventriloquism is great for entertainment, but freedom people must not make the mistake of devoting their time to telling each other how bad the present situation is. That is a futile undertaking. If they will spend their vital time in planning crusades, large or small, to defeat the enemy, they will win.

Patriots who are not ashamed to be called patriots are needed to organize against communism. And in crusading, they can organize a little, even with respect to such simple activities as writing truth - side letters to the editor - with topics, writers and targets assigned and accepted.

Fellowship promotes and engenders positive forces and accomplishments. That the enemy is thoroughly regimented we all know. Here is a place where patriots may take a lesson from those who would destroy freedom by organizing themselves and therefore becoming highly effective. They can place the pro - freedom side before the undecided and bewildered and even the dupes of the farleft.

Organization can be as formal or informal as any group of dedicated freedomists want to make it. The point is to work together for the preservation of liberty in our Republic. There is no valid reason why we should continue to let the enemy out-manage us. We have the better story to tell. Let's tell it. HLH.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

NIXON'S PERSONAL DECISION: Decides Labor Vote Is Vital; Drives For It - and Joins a Union.

New York: — Dick Nixon may not yet have his solid gold card in a union. But he does have a gilt pasteboard which will do him fine until the metallic one rolls in.

The candidate picked up his pasteboard the other day while running scared on the labor front. So now he is an honorary member of the Musicians Federation in Rochester, N.Y., a center of classical music — though Mr. Nixon, by his own admission, is "not a very good pianist."

After considerable fretting over the labor vote seeping to George Wallace, Mr. Nixon put together a labor brain trust, whipped some speeches into shape, decided to storm up some plant gate literature — and talk to hundreds of second echelon labor leaders themselves, person to person, man to man, all barriers down.

This pilot project in eyeballing could have boomeranged in the few vote-shopping days left. But it didn't. Dick Nixon walked into the Holiday Inn suite right off the Rochester airport, shook hands with local leaders of the musicians, the barbers, and the metal trades. They were just a handful — a backers' (c.q.) dozen. And everybody loved everybody.

There was no awe, no awkwardness — just banter and a view of Dick Nixon rarely seen. Up front that afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 17, was Joe DeVitt, president of the local Musicians union, formerly that union's New York state president.

At his suggestion, his executive board had voted Mr. Nixon an honorary membership — and later had cleared it with the national American Federation of Musicians (AFL-CIO).

Mr. Nixon, obviously not unprepared, came into the motel room, introduced himself all around, and said to Mr. DeVitt: "I should be a member of your union, I play the piano."

"I know, Mr. President," replied Mr. DeVitt, practically closing out the election. "You should belong to our union. You are, however, a lousy piano player."

"I appreciate this," grinned the candidate. "I know I'm not very good, but am I as good as (Harry) Truman (holder of a solid gold card in the national Federation)?"

"No," responded DeVitt, "but we did not do well under Truman. Here's the card. This November you are going to be my president, but with this card I'm your president, so you'll have to behave yourself."

Now Mr. Nixon has the record for the swiftest union disciplining in history. He bowed, put his fingers to his lips and said, "Sahib, sahib."

Everybody laughed. Nixon asked if there was a piano in the motel. But that would have meant a new security sweep by the Secret Service. So he did not go through the talent test. But now DeVitt quite seriously said "the time has come for the Republican Party and the labor movement to start to communicate."

"I intend to maintain an open door to labor, and the labor leaders, too," replied the now equally serious candidate. "I'll also consult with them."

"I'm sure they can be of help to me, and I hope I can be of some help to them."

There was some renewed banter — and Mr. Nixon, having spent some 45 minutes with the leaders who had been among Nelson Rockefeller's most active labor committee men, went on to a mass rally.

Now the advance teams are scouting the country. The first confrontation went well. Mr. Nixon took with good grace the ribbing, the familiarity, and the unsavory suggestions that he come out for a situs picketing law — to which he seemed to murmur, yes — which would give the construction unions fuller picketing rights around big projects. For this role he needed no coaching, no briefing, and no prepared text.

But for the major assault on the legions of Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Wallace, Dick Nixon has formalized his labor team. If he is elected, it will make policy on the tenses, most turbulent homefront issue, aside from the inner city revolution. To know the men means to know the policy for Mr. Nixon's administration, if there is one.

Mr. Nixon's man on the legal labor front is Washington attorney Stuart Rothman, NLRB chief counsel under Dwight Eisenhower, one of the land's best labor law technicians.

Also in Mr. Nixon's brain trust is former United Steelworkers union president, the silver-haired, pipe-smoking Dave McDonald. Actually, he has little influence left inside labor. But he loathes Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Johnson with a passion generally reserved for hippies for cops and vice versa. And there's Mr. Nixon's national campaign manager, Bob Ellsworth. The rest, really, are spear carriers.

Together, they and the candidate hope to recapture the Republicans' traditional share of the workingman's vote, so vital to carrying the big industrial states — especially this one.

There are some of us who believe this labor vote will make or break the candidate. We'll soon know.

Laub-Keith Vows Said

Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Laub, of Oran, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Janice Faye Laub of Sikeston, to Norman Jarit Keith of Sikeston. Keith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Keith, 5 Belair.

Candlelight ceremony was performed in front of the altar of the First Christian Church, Oct. 10 at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist church officiated as the bride and groom exchanged vows, and each placed a wedding ring on the hand of the other.

Baskets of daisy chrysanthemums were on each side of the kneeling bench.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white crepe, covered with panels of white lace bound with white crepe. The neckline of the dress was a sculptured, upsweeping crown collar.

The fingertip illusion veil cascaded from a crown of seed pearls and crystal tear drops. The bride carried a white bible, gift from the groom, topped with a cascade arrangement of white cattleya orchids, dendrobium and phalenopsis orchids with streamers of white satin ribbons tied in lovers' knots.

Dan Malone presented organ music. Mrs. Helen Reuber sang "Our Father" and "On This Our Wedding Day".

The matron of honor, Mrs. Jerry D. Koch, the bridesmaid, Miss Brenda Merrick, cousin of the bride, and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Kim Laub, sister of the bride, wore identical floor length dresses of autumn bronze crepe with lace sleeves and crown collars.

They carried cascades of white daisy poms with white satin lace ribbons tied in lovers' knots.

The flower girl, Miss LaDonna Laub, sister of the bride, wore a white crepe dress with white lace sleeves, styled from the dresses of the brides other attendants. She carried a willow basket of white daisy p.m. poms with ribbon streamers.

The best man, Charles Masters, Cape Girardeau, the groomsmen, Rene DeKriek, Sikeston, and the ushers, Jerry D. Koch Sikeston and Lanny Laub, Oran, brother of the bride, wore tuxedos and boutonnieres of white phalenopsis orchids. The groom wore a tuxedo, and his boutonniere was a rosette of dendrobium orchids.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of autumn brown wool jersey trimmed with brown lamb's wool cloth. Her shoes and purse were autumn brown, and she carried autumn bronze gloves which matched her velvet and netting hat. She wore a corsage of white cattleya orchid and satin lace ribbon.

The mother of the groom wore a two-piece wool jersey of sapphire blue and dusty gold, while her velvet and netting hat, patent leather shoes and handbag were all of sapphire blue. She wore a corsage of phalenopsis orchids trimmed with white satin ribbon.

Assisting at the table at the reception, following the ceremony, were Mrs. William Gohannon, Sikeston, and Mrs. Norman Pratt, Sikeston, aunts of the bride. Mrs. Judy Grooms, Oran, attended the guest book.

The bride and groom left after the reception to honeymoon in the Colorado mountains. The bride wore a dress of autumn gold and rich brown and autumn gold accessories to travel.

Laub-Keith Vows Said

Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Laub, of Oran, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Janice Faye Laub of Sikeston, to Norman Jarit Keith of Sikeston.

Keith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Keith, 5 Belair.

Candlelight ceremony was performed in front of the altar of the First Christian Church, Oct. 10 at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist church officiated as the bride and groom exchanged vows, and each placed a wedding ring on the hand of the other.

Baskets of daisy chrysanthemums were on each side of the kneeling bench. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white crepe, covered with panels of white lace bound with white crepe. The neckline of the dress was a sculptured, upsweeping crown collar.

The fingertip illusion veil cascaded from a crown of seed pearls and crystal tear drops. The bride carried a white bible, gift from the groom, topped with a cascade arrangement of white cattleya orchids, dendrobium and phalenopsis orchids with streamers of white satin ribbons tied in bows.

Dan Malone presented organ music. Mrs. Helen Reuber sang "Our Father" and "On This Our Wedding Day."

The matron of honor, Mrs. Jerry D. Koch, the bridesmaid, Miss Brenda Merriek, cousin of the bride, and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Kim Laub, sister of the bride, wore identical floor length dresses of autumn bronze crepe with lace sleeves and crown collars.

They carried cascades of white daisy poms with white satin lace ribbons tied in bows.

The flower girl, Miss LaDonna Laub, sister of the bride, wore a white crepe dress with white lace sleeves, styled from the dresses of the brides other attendants. She carried a willow basket of white daisy poms with ribbon streamers.

The best man, Charles Masters, Cape Girardeau, the groomsmen, Rene DeKriek, Sikeston, and the ushers, Jerry D. Koch, Sikeston and Lanny Laub, Oran, brother of the bride, wore tuxedos and boutonnieres of white phalenopsis orchids. The groom wore a tuxedo, and his boutonniere was a rosette of dendrobium orchids.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of autumn brown wool jersey trimmed with brown lamb's wool cloth. Her shoes and purse were autumn brown, and she carried autumn bronze gloves which matched her velvet and netting hat. She wore a corsage of white cattleya orchid and satin lace ribbon.

The mother of the groom wore a two-piece wool jersey of sapphire blue and dusty gold, while her velvet and netting hat, patent leather shoes and handbag were all of sapphire blue. She wore a corsage of phalenopsis orchids trimmed with white satin ribbon.

Pair Top Scoring

Perryville can attribute more than half of its success in the offensive department to Allen Frenzle and Jim Taylor. They top the district scoring.

Frenzle leads the northern division and district with 66 points through six games. Teammate Jim Taylor is second in the district and division with 55 points.

The Pirates top the district in offensive production with 192 points in six games.

Topping the southern division in scoring is Portageville's Dennis Fisher with 49 points. Fisher tops the extra point conversion department with 16.

Calvin Carter of South Pemiscot continues to lead the Bootheel League scoring with 30 points.

Both Perryville and Portageville lead their divisions in standings, and in the offensive and defensive departments.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — There are two major reasons why Missouri's football defense ranks among the best in the nation with an average yield of only 8.6 points in the Tigers' first five games.

One is senior defensive back Roger Wehrli and the other is junior defensive tackle Jay "Rocky" Wallace.

Wehrli made the all-Big Eight team in 1967 and has enhanced on

Series Friday

TOKYO AP — The National League champion St. Louis Cardinals arrived in Tokyo Wednesday to play 18 goodwill games against Japanese baseball teams.

The Cardinals will play their first game Friday against the Yomiuri Giants, Japan's baseball champions.

Three Japanese girls dressed in kimonos presented bouquets of flowers to baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert, Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst and Cardinal executive vice president Stan Musial as they stepped from a chartered plane into a drizzle.

The Cardinal contingent consisted of 15 players and coaches. The Cardinals will leave Tokyo for the United States Nov. 24.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kaye Ball, 17-year-old speedster from Tacoma, Wash., broke the world record for the women's 100-meter backstroke, winning the gold medal with a time of 1:06.2.

Charles Hickcox, the world record holder from Phoenix, Ariz., out-spurred teammate Gary Ball of Garden Grove, Calif., as the United States finished 1-2 in the men's 400-meter individual medley swimming final.

Sharon Wickman, 16-year-old Fort Wayne, Ind., high school junior won the women's 200-meter breaststroke in Olympic record time of 2:44.4.

Shooting Gary Anderson of Axtell, Neb., won the gold medal in the free rifle event of the shooting competition, breaking his own world and Olympic records with a score of 1,157 out of a possible 1,200.

Cycling Pierre Franconi Vianelli of Italy won the gold medal in the individual open road cycling race.

Mt. Nebo, traditional burial place of Moses, is in the Pisgah range, located in ancient Palestine and now part of Jordan.

Mizzou Gets Call Over Kansas - State

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a pretty safe bet that somebody in the Ivy League will find a way to bounce Bernie Zbrzezny before anyone figures out a way to pronounce him.

Zbrzezny, a talented quarterback whose tongue-twisting surname has become the keynote of a Pennsylvania football revival, will be at the trigger Saturday when the unbeaten Quakers take on Princeton.

The guess here is that the tough Tigers will beat Bernie to the draw and snip Penn's victory string at four.

Tigers Yet to Lose to

K-State Under Devine

COLUMBIA AP — This is not a week when Coach Dan Devine of Missouri wants to be confronted by any of that geometric hogwash.

If "A" is greater than "B," and "B" is greater than "C," then "A" is greater than "C," says the textbook.

Transposing - if Missouri is better than Colorado (27-14), and Colorado is better than Kansas State (37-13), then Missouri is better than K-State.

"Bah! Huh! Cool it!," shouts Devine, who normally is something of a non-shouter. A pretty fair clipboard scaler, but not much of a holler-guy.

Favored football coaches despise the logic of geometry. Football, they insist, is full of illogical twists. That's why Devine & Co. are stewing ahead of this Saturday's Mizzou - K-State conference game at Manhattan.

Missouri takes a 4-1 overall record into the 1:30 kickoff in the Cats' new battle - ground. The Bengals own Big Eight victories over Colorado and Nebraska. K-State is 2-3 - with a pair of conference losses to Iowa State and Colorado.

Devine points with dismay to the speed in Coach Vince Gibson's backfield - horsepower wrapped up in such game-breakers as Mack (The Tank) Herron, Larry Brown and Cornelius Davis. He hopes as rugged Missouri defense will be extra-vigilant.

Importantly, too, the Bengals' pass defense must tighten up against the aerial probes of quarterbacks Bill Nokes and Lynn Dickey, a rangy newcomer. Favorite targets are flanker Dave Jones - a spectacular receiver - and Herron, who is ever-dangerous in the open field.

The Tigers were hurt by a 27-14 victory over Colorado two weeks ago and a couple of long-gunning aerials against Nebraska last week.

And the problem will be doubly - dangerous Saturday because M.U. will be without the services of safety Dennis Poppe, who is out for the season after suffering a broken arm against the Huskers.

He's a strong guy, and dedicated," Devine added. "He's just given us a good, steady performance every week."

Moving up with Wallace into the "prime" group of Midlands defensive All-American candidates, in the board's view, was Colorado end Dick Schnitker. He was the Big Eight's top lineman two weeks ago for his play against Iowa

State, and is rated by Coach Eddie Crowder as "the finest defensive end I've ever been around."

Still rated highly are Kansas end John Zook and North Texas State tackle Joe Greene.

Defensive standouts whose performances last week brought them to the board's attention for consideration were Mike Montler, Nebraska guard Joe Armstrong and Oklahoma State center John Kolb.

Offensively, the top players under study at the halfway point in the season include Oklahoma wide receiver Eddie Hinton, Kansas quarterback Bobby Douglass, Cincinnati quarterback Greg Cook, Colorado tackle Mike Montler, Nebraska guard Joe Armstrong and Oklahoma State center John Kolb.

SHS Defensive Honor Awarded Long, Sumlin

The Sikeston Bulldogs' defensive honors for the football game against the Dexter Bears last Friday night go to two lettermen, Gary Long and Rufus Sumlin. Normally, a back and a lineman are named as the outstanding defensive players of the week, but for the Dexter game, two linemen were chosen by Coach Sapp.

Both Long and Sumlin did such good jobs, it was impossible to overlook either.

Long, a senior and one year letterman, weighs 195 pounds. He plays both left guard on offense and middle linebacker on defense. He is one of the top 10 students in his class and president of the National Honor Society chapter, a scholastic organization.

Sumlin, a junior and a letter veteran from last year. He is a defensive specialist filling a tackle spot. A six footer, he tips the scales at 230 pounds and fills a big hole when he's on the line.

Perryville Mizzou Has Two All-American Candidates

Pair Top Scoring

Perryville can attribute more than half of its success in the offensive department to Allen Frenzle and Jim Taylor. They top the district scoring.

Frenzle leads the northern division and district with 66 points through six games. Teammate Jim Taylor is second in the district and division with 55 points.

The Pirates top the district in offensive production with 192 points in six games.

Topping the southern division in scoring is Portageville's Dennis Fisher with 49 points. Fisher tops the extra point conversion department with 16.

Calvin Carter of South Pemiscot continues to lead the Bootheel League scoring with 30 points.

Both Perryville and Portageville lead their divisions in standings, and in the offensive and defensive departments.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — There are two major reasons why Missouri's football defense ranks among the best in the nation with an average yield of only 8.6 points in the Tigers' first five games.

One is senior defensive back Roger Wehrli and the other is junior defensive tackle Jay "Rocky" Wallace.

Wehrli made the all-Big Eight team in 1967 and has enhanced on

Cards Open Series Friday

TOKYO AP — The National League champion St. Louis Cardinals arrived in Tokyo Wednesday to play 18 goodwill games against Japanese baseball teams.

The Cardinals will play their first game Friday against the Yomiuri Giants, Japan's baseball champions.

Three Japanese girls dressed in kimono presented bouquet of flowers to baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert, Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst and Cardinal executive vice president Stan Musial as they stepped from a chartered plane into a drizzle.

The Cardinal contingent consisted of 15 players and coaches. The Cardinals will leave Tokyo for the United States Nov. 24.

Mizzou Gets Call Over Kansas - State

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a pretty safe bet that somebody in the Ivy League will find a way to bounce Bernie Zbrzezni before anybody figures out a way to pronounce him.

Zbrzezni, a talented quarterback whose tongue-twisting surname has become the keynote of a Pennsylvania football revival, will be at the trigger Saturday when the unbeaten Quakers travel to Princeton.

The guess here is that the tough Tigers will beat Bernie to the draw and snip Penn's victory string at four.

The pickings were on the his record this season by his earlier. Now, both rank on the usual rugged play, two pass interceptions and a Associated Press regional board conference leading 304 yards on 27 punt returns.

Wallace, a 216-pounder, has been just as consistent, but has had to try harder to get recognized.

He's been the Big Eight lineman-of-the-week twice in five Missouri games for his slambang play against Nebraska last week and against Illinois

Tigers Yet to Lose to K-State Under Devine

COLUMBIA — This is not a week when Coach Dan Devine of Missouri wants to be confronted by any of that geometric Fountain will take over for Wehrli.

If "A" is greater than "B," and "B" is greater than "C," then "A" is greater than "C," says the textbook.

Transposing - if Missouri is better than Colorado (27-14), Greg Cook, slotback Jon Stagers and fullbacks Ron McBride and James Harrison.

Cook is the team's leading rusher while fullbacks McBride and Harrison have combined to score five of the Tigers' 13 touchdowns this season.

Harrison has crossed the goal-line three times for a team-leading 18 points.

Whereas the Tiger ground game is roaring, Devine is hoping that quarterback Terry McMillan can shake off the inconsistency that recently has been plaguing his air antics.

After a 154-yard performance against Kentucky, McMillan has thrown for less than 300 yards in the last four games.

Devine has never lost to Kansas State since he took over in Tigerland in 1958. Perhaps Gibson hopes a change of scenery - K - State's new stadium - can produce a different and happier ending.

Wehrli, a pre-season All-American pick at defensive halfback, will be moved to safety and rookie George Fountain will take over for Wehrli.

Mizzou will attempt to match K-State's scoring potential with its hell-churning running attack, led by tailback Greg Cook, slotback Jon Stagers and fullbacks Ron McBride and James Harrison.

Devine has never lost to Kansas State since he took over in Tigerland in 1958. Perhaps Gibson hopes a change of scenery - K - State's new stadium - can produce a different and happier ending.

Devine points with dismay to the speed in Coach Vince Gibson's backfield - horsepower wrapped up in such game-breakers as Mack (The Tank) Herron, Larry Brown and Cornelius Davis. He hopes as rugged Missouri defense will be extra vigilant.

Importantly, too, the Bengals' pass defense must tighten up against the aerial probes of quarterbacks Bill Nosske and Lynn Dickey, a rangy newcomer. Favorite targets are flanker Dave Jones - a spectacular receiver - and Herron, who is ever-dangerous in the open field.

The Tigers were hurt by two long scoring passes in a 27-14 victory over Colorado two weeks ago and a couple of long-gaining aeriels against Nebraska last week.

And the problem will be doubly - dangerous Saturday because M.U. will be without the services of safety Dennis Poppe, who is out for the season after suffering a broken arm against the Huskers.

SHS Defensive Honor Awarded Long, Sumlin

The Sikeston Bulldogs' defensive honors for the football game against the Dexter Bearcats last Friday night go to two linemen, Gary Long and Rufus Sumlin. Normally, a back and a lineman are named as the outstanding defensive players of the week, but for the Dexter game, two linemen were chosen by Coach Sapp.

Both Long and Sumlin did such good jobs, it was impossible to overlook either.

Long, a senior and one year letterman, weighs 195 pounds. He plays both left guard on offense and middle linebacker on defense. He is one of the top 10 students in his class and president of the National Honor Society chapter, a scholastic organization.

Sumlin, a junior and a letter veteran from last year. He is a defensive specialist filling a tackle spot. A six footer, he tips the scales at 230 pounds and fills a big hole when he's on the line.

'White Elephant Trade' Keeps Everyone Happy

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Every few months a group of us girls have what we call "A Trade." We save up those things we no longer use and want to discard, take them to one person's house at a certain time and set them all out. Everyone takes what she wants. No money is ever exchanged. This is such a good way to get rid of no-longer-needed articles which someone else might like or need. When everyone has chosen all she wants, the rest is donated to some needy family or charity. Everyone goes home happy with someone else's "white elephant," knowing she has made someone else happy. We find this especially good for children's clothing. As you well know, they grow out of things so fast and often long before they are worn out.—JUDY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—The salt shaker to my pottery dishes stayed moist until I put rice in it. However, I have the same problem with the pepper shaker and am unable to do anything about it. The pepper becomes moist, clings to the sides of the shaker and even molds. Rice does not work with it. I wonder if other pottery owners have had the same problem? If so, I would appreciate any suggestions on how to cope with it.—VIRGINIA

DEAR POLLY—Many times in the past I have locked myself out of the house by leaving the key inside and slamming the door. I have a tip that solved the problem. I wear a thin, gold chain around my neck. Instead of a pendant on it, I have a golden key to my front door. It is always there in case I forget and lock myself out. This key is a conversation piece and I tell some that it is really just the one to my front door.—MRS. G. P.

DEAR GIRLS—This would be a great idea for the children. It could hang down inside their clothes, out of sight and not necessarily of gold. Older girls could have such a key gold or silver-plated and attached to their charm bracelets.—POLLY

Goldwater Campaign Well Heeled

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizonaans are being told a vote for Barry Goldwater is an endorsement of the Grand Canyon and the spirit of the Western pioneers.

The message comes from an obviously well-financed campaign to return Goldwater to the U.S. Senate, where he served for 12 years before trying unsuccessfully for the White House four years ago.

Roy Elson, 38, a Democrat making his second try for the Senate, is fighting hard to beat the Republican Goldwater. In 1964 he lost to GOP Sen. Paul Fannin. Elson's main campaign asset is the endorsement of retiring Sen. Carl Hayden, 91.

A supermarket survey published recently by a Phoenix newspaper gave Goldwater 57 per cent, with Elson getting 33 per cent of those interviewed. Goldwater aides say this is about what their own polls show.

Elson forces acknowledge they are trailing but say the spread is only from 4 to 8 points.

Goldwater, 59, hammers away at crime in the streets and the need for new leadership to end the war in Vietnam. These were chief topics of his 1964 presidential campaign, and he says history has proven him right.

But a hangover from that campaign as to his stance on use of nuclear weapons still haunts him. In 1964 he suffered from his famous "de-foliation" remark, which he said was erroneously interpreted as advocating use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

Elson has concentrated almost entirely on state issues, especially funding of the newly authorized Central Arizona Project.

The Democratic candidate has attacked Goldwater's voting record as being contrary to the interests of Arizona, development of national defense and the space program.

The self-described moderate liberal cites his 15 years as an administrative aide to Hayden as a better qualification than Goldwater's two terms in the Senate.

Elson says he is having trouble raising funds to combat Goldwater's extensive resources. Goldwater reported $150,277 in primary election expenses even though he had no Republican opposition, while Elson put out $54,044 to win an impressive Democratic primary over two opponents.

Goldwater aides say part of the primary cost went to buy advance advertising being used in the general election.

During World Series broadcasts in Arizona, Goldwater commercials were frequent. They extolled Goldwater as champion of pioneer virtues.

Goldwater billboards, showing the conservative leader in Western garb with the Grand Canyon and Monument Valley Scenery in the background, shadow major roads in the metropolitan area.

Pensioner Not Much Impressed By Nobility

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Robert Hardinge, an 81-year-old pensioner who lives in one room in a Denver hotel, isn't much impressed by his elevation to the British nobility.

"I don't care about the title, I want to live a little longer," said Hardinge, when informed of the death of his uncle in London made him the sixth Baronet of Lurran.

"It doesn't do me any good," said Hardinge, "I don't think there's any money involved." On World War I and Social Security pensions totaling $143 a month, he said, he isn't planning any trip to Great Britain to find out.

Debrett's, the publication that keeps track of such things, said Hardinge inherited the baronetcy upon the death Sunday of Sir Charles Edmund Hardinge, 89, of London.

The title means that Hardinge now is correctly addressed as Sir Robert Hardinge.

Hardinge said he understood there once was a 320-acre estate, but said the last he heard the stone mansion had fallen down and "the gatehouse is all that's left."

The British Consulate in Denver said estates, when there are estates, usually accompany the title in line of inheritance. But, it was pointed out, there probably would be heavy death duties.

"I might go over some day, if I got the money," said Hardinge, "but I couldn't make the trip on my income."

Hardinge, whose name is pronounced "Harding," said he had little contact with Sir Charles, and never saw him.

Hardinge said he worked as a civilian guard at Lowry Air Force Base here during World War II, for the Colorado Highway Department at Greeley for a time and in a Denver liquor store during the late 1940s, just before he retired.

He was married twice. Both ended in divorce.

Home for Sir Robert is the Rockland Hotel. His son, Robert Arnold, 54, and next in line, lives in the same hotel.

TOGETHERNESS AT FAIR DOUGLAS, Wyo (AP) The historic feud between sheepmen and cattlemen has ended at the Wyoming State Fair.

Sirhan's Lawyer Says Setback Can Be Helpful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defense efforts to suppress material seized in the home of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan failed Tuesday.

But Russell E. Parsons, attorney for the man accused of slaying Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, told newsmen afterwards that "sometimes when a judge rules against you it can be very helpful."

He said "our attention might now be directed to a more careful search and study why these things were said and done," adding that the notebooks and other materials found in Sirhan's room "may indicate something" about the 24-year-old Jordanian to psychiatrists.

Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker said he was not ruling on the admissibility of the evidence, but only on whether it should be suppressed. He said police had "reasonable authority" to enter the home without a search warrant because one of Sirhan's brothers gave consent.

Among items seized and marked for identification Tuesday were notebooks that included, according to Mayor Sam Yorty's comment shortly after the assassination, "a direct reference to the necessity to assassinate Sen. Kennedy before June 5, 1968."

Chief Deputy Dist. Atty. Lynn D. Compton, who also held a news conference after the hearing, said he and co-prosecutors would use whatever documents seized at the Sirhan home they decided are helpful and relevant. Asked if a memo relating to the assassination fell into that category, Compton replied: "That would be a significant piece of evidence."

Kennedy was shot fatally just after proclaiming victory in California's June 4 Democratic presidential primary.

Sirhan's brother, Adel, 29, confirmed in Tuesday's hearing police testimony that he had Yankee Doodle Dandy and approved the search. "I said something to the effect, 'It's okay with me.'"

But a younger brother, Munir, 21, denied two policemen's testimony that he also had approved. He said police questioned him but that there was no conversation about searching the family house in suburban Pasadena.

And Mary Sirhan, the mother, testified, "It is my house; I am buying it"—and that she, too, gave no permission to enter it.

Homecoming Nov. 1-2 at Cape State

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Hundreds of Southeast Missouri State College alumni, from Missouri and elsewhere, will return to the campus Nov. 1-2 to celebrate Homecoming.

This year's theme is "Frontiers: Past, Present, and Future."

The major activities of the two-day event will fall on Nov. 2 when there will be a parade, alumni luncheon and business meeting, football game between SEMO and Southwest Missouri State College, and a dance.

Guests at the luncheon will be members of the classes of 1918 and 1943, celebrating their 50th and 25th reunions.

Throughout the day fraternities, sororities, and other campus organizations will sponsor open houses, teas, and receptions for former members. There will also be a mixer for all alumni at the Cape Girardeau Holiday Inn following the afternoon football game.

Members of the Alumni Council, governing body of the SEMO Alumni Association, will arrive on the campus Nov. 1. They will attend a 6 p.m. dinner and business session at the home of SEMO's president, Dr. Mark Scully.

Later the Homecoming Queen will be crowned during a concert at Houck Field House. The concert will feature Boyce and Hart, recording artists.

Twelve coeds are running for the queen's title. The winner will be chosen in an all-student election Oct. 23, but the results will not be revealed until the night of the coronation.

The next seven coeds in the voting will be members of the queen's court.

President of the SEMO Alumni association is Thurston Hill, superintendent of schools in Dexter. He is completing the first year of a two-year term.

Requests for tickets to the Nov. 2 luncheon or dance should be addressed to Miss Hatie Eicholtz, executive secretary of the Alumni Association, in care of the college.

Reserved seat tickets for the football game may be obtained through Athletic Director Kenneth Knox at the college.

Majorettes Have Vital Role in Eagles Band

CAPE GIRARDEAU—The majorettes in many marching bands have little or no purpose on the field except to add a touch of sex appeal to the performance.

This is not the case with the Golden Eagles marching band of Southeast Missouri State College.

A majorette with the Golden Eagles has an exclusive — and important position.

It is exclusive because Leroy Mason, the band's director for 12 years, uses three and only three-majorettes, while there is no limit on the number of persons who can play in the band.

Granddaughter Upholds George Cohan Tradition

NEW YORK (AP) — Half a century ago, George M. Cohan encouraged performers to entertain American servicemen "Over There."

Today, in a different war, in a different place, his granddaughter Michaela has been doing just that.

Miss Cohan, who was 25 Wednesday, returned earlier this month from 13 months in Vietnam where she was an Army service club director.

Unlike her famous grandfather, the attractive, brown-haired girl did not sing or dance.

"I don't have the talent," she said. Instead, Miss Cohan explained, her job was "sort of like being a stage manager," arranging for USO shows and making sure the service clubs ran smoothly.

Miss Cohan said she preferred not to discuss the political aspects of the war. In answer to a question, however, she said, "I don't think patriotic sentiments are old-fashioned."

Her grandfather's patriotic efforts with songs like "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "It's a Grand Old Flag"—won recognition from President Franklin D. Roosevelt who presented the composer with the Congressional medal for his "outstanding contributions to the American spirit."

Miss Cohan said she never knew her grandfather. "He died the year before I was born," she said, but added, "I've heard his songs since the time I was born. I love his music."

She got to listen to some of that music Wednesday night when she attended the Broadway show "George M!" which is based on Cohan's life.

Miss Cohan said she "used to push" her grandfather's songs in the service clubs by playing a tape recording of the show. But, she lamented, "most of the GIs over there don't know him or have never heard the songs. They're too young—only 18."

Gesturing frequently, Miss Cohan explained she joined the Army's Special Services Division as a civilian when she graduated from Maryland College in Lancaster, Pa. She went first to Korea where she spent 14 months, then Vietnam. She said her father, George M. Cohan Jr., was in special services during World War II.

Santa Maria Treasure Hunt Ends Until Summer

DUBLIN (AP) — The remains of the Santa Maria de la Rosa, a ship of the Spanish Armada sunk in 1588, have been found, but hopes of recovering her reputed treasure must wait until next summer.

When Lt. Cmdr. John Grattan, 33, of Britain's Royal Navy, surfaced in the middle of Blasket Sound with the cry, "We've found her!" it ended a four-month search in which 15 divers covered 3,000 acres.

The Santa Maria de la Rosa was one of 24 ships of the Armada which sank off the Irish coast in September 1588 after Philip of Spain's abortive attempt to invade Elizabethan England.

Sydney Wignall, 45-year-old Welsh businessman and chief sponsor of the search, said: "You'll get some idea of the difficulty if I say that we were like 15 Batmen flying over a town of 40,000 population peering into everybody's backyard to find a toy boat."

Blasket Sound, at the tip of the Dingle Peninsula, is pounded by Atlantic combers. Powerful currents stream between three barren, uninhabited islands. It's no place for amateur skin-divers.

Everybody knew the Santa Maria lay in the sound. Fishermen who speak only the ancient Gaelic language knew it because their fathers told them—a legend handed down through the generations. In Spain there are documents describing exactly how the ship sank. In London are accounts of how she sank with only a single survivor of the 233 soldiers and 64 sailors on board.

The divers are silent about any discovery of treasure. Documents in London, dated 1588, say the galleon carried 50,000 gold ducats and 50,000 silver coins. Today that would be worth around $2 million.

John P. King, Dublin lawyer who acts for the diving team says: "We have been granted a license by the Spanish government to salvage Armada wrecks. We deposited a bond of $3,000 in return for which we may retain all objects of historical interest and 80 per cent of all coin or other treasure, the Spanish government retaining the remaining 20 per cent."

Mason said the show when the Golden Eagles will perform in Miami in January will be based on Irving Berlin's music. Right now, however, he is faced with producing three more shows for the remaining home football games in Cape, and it will probably be December before the band really begins to concentrate on the Miami production, he said.

He attributes this to close cooperation with the networks. "I make sure they know what we are going to do and that it is okay with them. I clear all the music and all other parts of the show with the producer and director. I provide charts of the entire show, showing our field formations and describing exactly what we are doing at a given time."

"It takes a tremendous amount of time to do all this, but it has paid off."

The treasure hunt starts again next summer, with underwater metal detectors, diver-to-diver and diver-to-ship telephones, water jets and suction pumps. It is estimated that survey and salvage will last up to five seasons.

But dreams of treasure are not shared by everybody.

Tom P. Kilfeather, author of the book "Spanish Graveyard," says: "They are wasting their time. The Santa Maria de la Rosa was not even a galleon. She was a converted merchantman or freighter, armed with a few cannon and sent off with the Armada."

'Why should such a ship carry a fortune in gold and silver? Nobody goes to war with holds stuffed with treasure.' Kilfeather thinks the sole survivor of the wreck invented the treasure in an attempt to save his life. He was executed, however.

It can wash its headlights. It can apply liquid tire chain to its rear wheels. It can silently defog or defrost the rear window. It can keep you cool or warm automatically with Comforton — the self-adjusting air-conditioning system.

And once you've added all these wonderful devices to a new Chevrolet, you just can't imagine why anyone would give a second thought to a second-place car.

The headlight washers and liquid tire chain for traction on slippery roads are operated at the touch of a button from the driver's seat. So is the silent new rear-window defroster. Invisible ceramic strips on the glass heat up to keep the window clear.

Also available: Chevrolet's Light Monitoring System that lets you know from inside if all your outside lights are working, full four-speaker stereo, a smooth 3-speed Turbo Hydra-matic transmission. All in a car made quieter, made stronger, made more comfortable. Now at your Chevrolet dealer's.

'White Elephant Trade' Keeps Everyone Happy

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Every few months a group of us girls have what we call "A Trade." We save up those things we no longer use and want to discard, take them to one person's house at a certain time and set them all out. Everyone takes what she wants. No money is ever exchanged. This is such a good way to get rid of no-longer-needed articles which someone else might like or need. When everyone has chosen all she wants, the rest is donated to some needy family or charity. Everyone goes home happy with someone else's "white elephant," knowing she has made someone else happy. We find this especially good for children's clothing. As you well know, they grow out of things so fast and often long before they are worn out.—JUDY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—The salt shaker to my pottery dishes stayed moist until I put rice in it. However, I have the same problem with the pepper shaker and am unable to do anything about it. The pepper becomes moist, clings to the sides of the shaker and even molds. Rice does not work with it. I wonder if other pottery owners have had the same problem? If so, I would appreciate any suggestions on how to cope with it.—VIRGINIA

DEAR POLLY—Many times in the past I have locked myself out of the house by leaving the key inside and slamming the door. I have a tip that solved the problem. I wear a thin, gold chain around my neck. Instead of a pendant on it, I have a golden key to my front door. It is always there in case I forget and lock myself out. This key is a conversation piece and I tell some but it is the key to my heart but it is really just the one to my front door.—MRS. G. P.

DEAR GIRLS—This would be a great idea for the children. It could hang down inside their clothes, out of sight and not necessarily of gold. Older girls could have such a key gold or silver-plated and attached to their charm bracelets.—POLLY record as being contrary to the interests of Arizona, development of national defense and the space program.

The self-described moderate liberal cites his 15 years as an administrative aide to Hayden as a better qualification than Goldwater's two terms in the Senate.

Elson says he is having trouble raising funds to combat Goldwater's extensive resources. Goldwater reported $150,277 in primary election expenses even though he had no Republican opposition, while Elson put out $54,044 to win an impressive Democratic primary over two opponents.

Goldwater aides say part of the primary cost went to buy advance advertising being used in the general election.

During World Series broadcasts in Arizona, Goldwater commercials were frequent. They extolled Goldwater as champion of pioneer virtues.

Goldwater billboards, showing the conservative leader in Western garb with the Grand Canyon and Monument Valley Scenery in the background, shadow major roads in the metropolitan area.

Pensioner Not Much Impressed By Nobility

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Robert Harding, an 81-year-old pensioner who lives in one room in a Denver hotel, isn't much impressed by his elevation to the British nobility.

"I don't care about the title. I want to live a little longer," said Harding, when informed of the death of his uncle in London made him the sixth Baronet of Lurran.

"It doesn't do me any good," said Harding, "I don't think there's any money involved." On World War I and Social Security pensions totaling $143 a month, he said, he isn't planning any trip to Great Britain to find out.

Debreit's, the publication that keeps track of such things, said Harding inherited the baronetcy upon the death Sunday of Sir Charles Edmund Harding, 89, of London.

The title means that Harding now is correctly addressed as Sir Robert Harding.

Harding said he understood there once was a 320-acre estate, but said the last he heard the stone mansion had fallen down and "the gatehouse is all that's left."

The British Consulate in Denver said estates, when there are estates, usually accompany the title in line of inheritance. But, it was pointed out, there probably would be heavy death duties.

"I might go over some day, if I got the money," said Harding, "but I couldn't make the trip on my income."

Harding, whose name is pronounced "Harding," said he had little contact with Sir Charles, and never saw him.

Harding said he worked as a civilian guard at Lowry Air Force Base here during World War II, for the Colorado Highway Department at Greeley for a time, and in a Denver liquor store during the late 1940s, just before he retired.

He was married twice. Both ended in divorce. Home for Sir Robert is the Rockland Hotel. His son, Robert Arnold, 54, and next in line, lives in the same hotel.

TOGETHERNESS AT FAIR DOUGLAS, Wyo. (AP) — The historic feud between sheepmen and cattlemen has ended at the Wyoming State Fair.

For many years, booths of the Wyoming Stock Growers Association and Wyoming Wool Growers Association were located side by side at the fairgrounds, separated by a solid partition. But the partition was taken down this year and visitors to both exhibit booths mingled freely.

Sirhan's Lawyer Says Setback Can Be Helpful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defense efforts to suppress material seized in the home of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan failed Tuesday.

But Russell E. Parsons, attorney for the man accused of slaying Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, told newsmen afterwards that "sometimes when a judge rules against you it can be very helpful."

He said "our attention might now be directed to a more careful search and study why these things were said and done," adding that the notebooks and other materials found in Sirhan's room "may indicate something" about the 24-year-old Jordanian to psychiatrists.

Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker said he was not ruling on the admissibility of the evidence, but only on whether it should be suppressed. He said police had "reasonable authority" to enter the home without a search warrant because one of Sirhan's brothers gave consent.

Among items seized—and marked for identification Tuesday—were notebooks that included, according to Mayor Sam Yorty's comment shortly after the assassination, "a direct reference to the necessity to assassinate Sen. Kennedy before June 5, 1968."

Chief Deputy Dist. Atty. Lynn D. Compton, who also held a news conference after the hearing, said he and co-prosecutors would use whatever documents seized at the Sirhan home they decided are helpful and relevant. Asked if a memo relating to the assassination fell into that category, Compton replied: "That would be a significant piece of evidence."

Kennedy was shot fatally just after proclaiming victory in California's June 4 Democratic presidential primary.

Sirhan's brother, Adel, 29, confirmed in Tuesday's hearing efforts with songs like "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "It's a Grand Old Flag" won recognition from President Franklin D. Roosevelt who presented the composer with the Congressional medal for his "outstanding contributions to the American spirit."

Miss Cohan said she never knew her grandfather. "He died the year before I was born," she said, but added, "I've heard his songs since the time I was born."

She got to listen to some of that music Wednesday night when she attended the Broadway show "George M!" which is based on Cohan's life.

Miss Cohan said she "used to push" her grandfather's songs in the service clubs by playing a tape recording of the show. But, she lamented, "most of the GIs over there don't know him or have never heard the songs. They're too young—only 18."

Gesturing frequently, Miss Cohan explained she joined the Army's Special Services Division as a civilian when she graduated from Marywood College in Scranton, Pa. She went first to Korea where she spent 14 months, then Vietnam. She said her father, George M. Cohan Jr., was in special services during World War II.

Homecoming Nov. 1-2 at Cape State

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Hundreds of Southeast Missouri State College alumni, from Missouri and elsewhere, will return to the campus Nov. 1-2 to celebrate Homecoming.

This year's theme is "Frontiers: Past, Present, and Future."

The major activities of the two-day event will fall on Nov. 2 when there will be a parade, alumni luncheon and business meeting, football game between SMO and Southwest Missouri State College, and a dance.

Guests at the luncheon will be members of the classes of 1918 and 1943, celebrating their 50th and 25th reunions.

Throughout the day fraternities, sororities, and other campus organizations will sponsor open houses, teas, and receptions for former members. There will also be a mixer for all alumni at the Cape Girardeau Holiday Inn following the afternoon football game.

Members of the Alumni Council, governing body of the SMO Alumni Association, will arrive on the campus Nov. 1. They will attend a 6 p.m. dinner and business session at the home of SMO's president, Dr. Mark Seully.

Later the Homecoming Queen will be crowned during a concert at Houck Field House. The concert will feature Boyce and Hart, recording artists.

Twelve coeds are running for the queen's title. The winner will be chosen in an all-student election Oct. 23, but the results will not be revealed until the night of the coronation.

The next seven coeds in the voting will be members of the queen's court.

President of the SMO Alumni association is Thurston Hill, superintendent of schools in Dexter. He is completing the first year of a two-year term.

Requests for tickets to the Nov. 2 luncheon or dance should be addressed to Miss Hattie Eicholtz, executive secretary of the Alumni Association, in care of the college.

Reserved seat tickets for the football game may be obtained through Athletic Director Kenneth Knox at the college.

Just sitting there, this '69 Chevrolet can do four things competitive cars can't:

It can wash its headlights. It can apply liquid tire chain to its rear wheels.

It can silently defog or defrost the rear window.

It can keep you cool or warm automatically with Comforton — the self-adjusting air-conditioning system.

And once you've added all these wonderful devices to a new Chevrolet, you just can't imagine why anyone would give a second thought to a second-place car.

The headlight washers and liquid tire chain for traction on slippery roads are operated at the touch of a button from the driver's seat. So is the silent new rear-window defroster. Invisible ceramic strips on the glass heat up to keep the window clear.

Also available: Chevrolet's Light Monitoring System that lets you know from inside if all your outside lights are working, full four-speaker stereo, a smooth 3-speed Turbo Hydra-matic transmission. All in a car made quieter, made stronger, made more comfortable. Now at your Chevrolet dealer's.

We've said it before, and we'll say it again.

Match this, you other '69s!

Putting you first, keeps us first.

BRUCE BLOSSAT
Lindsay Is Latest Victim Of Law and Order Mood
By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York is not involved in the 1968 elections except as an occasional campaigner for other Republicans. Yet current voter attitudes toward him say a great deal about the mood of the nation in this strange year.

Private polls taken in New York City only a bit more than a fortnight ago, refined to eliminate persons unlikely to vote, show that 55 per cent of the city electorate either definitely or probably would vote against Lindsay if balloting today. Only 24 per cent would definitely or probably support him.

Matching Lindsay against Arthur Goldberg, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, the mayor in this same set of polls trails 48 to 22. He also loses in three other pairings, one with Frank O'Connor, who ran so inept a race in the Democrats' 1966 attempt to unseat Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Moreover, when New York City voters are asked to rate Lindsay's performance as mayor, 42 per cent say "poor," 26 per cent say "fair," only 20 per cent say "good" and 8 per cent say "excellent."

These results are absolutely staggering when set beside the still growing legend of Lindsay as a kind of hero of the cities — the man who kept Harlem cool through several hot summers, who walked fearlessly among the blacks and Puerto Ricans, who delivered knowledgeable speeches on urban problems, who often was touted at Miami Beach as the one who could do the most for Richard Nixon as a running mate.

Unhappily, the polls in question do not probe into New York voters' reasons for judging Lindsay so harshly.

It is perhaps not unfair to assume that to some extent the appraisal is truly a general one, indicating that many New Yorkers do not believe that since he took office in 1966 Lindsay has really solved any of the problems that make their city nearly unlivable.

Some analysts who have put the Lindsay regime under scrutiny from time to time have come up with summary judgments not far from that viewpoint.

But in the view of some seasoned judges of the New York scene, a general downgrading is not the big thing. They argue that Lindsay's amazingly low poll status today has one overriding meaning: He is a victim of the "law and order" mood which is running rampant today in New York, the other big cities, and most of the country.

A month ago this reporter wrote that polls in two normally Democratic Jewish districts in Brooklyn were showing heavy margins for Nixon. The explanation — law and order.

So Lindsay not only did not fit the Republican party's mood at Miami Beach, but he does not suit the national mood.

No one could say with good sense that the American people today are not gravely concerned about the Vietnam war. They want it ended as soon as possible. But there is no majority for withdrawal at any price, nor any clear sign U.S. voters generally think any 1968 presidential candidate has some magic solution.

It is law and order, not Vietnam, that is sinking Vice President Humphrey so deeply in the mire. No peace policy he could devise would save him.

Hyosophobia is a fear of high places; acrophobia is a fear of being at a great height. The Napoleonic wars of 1804 to 1815 cost the lives of 500,000 Frenchmen, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Missouri Electors to Cast Ballots Dec. 16

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — the same number of electors as before 2 p.m. Monday, Dec. 16, a state has members of the group of 12 Missourians will national House and Senate. Wallace's party had to do it help make official what differently. Petitions were America's voters will have circulated to get enough known for more than a signatures in all 10 congressional month—the name of the next districts to put the party on the president and vice president of presidential ballot in Missouri. And it named former Alabama

That's when Missouri's Gov. George C. Wallace as the presidential electors will gather party candidate for president, on the call of Gov. Warren E. plus Marvin Griffin for Hearnes to cast their ballots for vice-president.

Wallace's later choice of Air Force Gen. Curtis M. LeMay (ret), as his vice-presidential running mate won't count on the Missouri ballot. The printed ballot will carry Griffin's name, though Wallace voters can write in LeMay to replace Griffin.

What many Missourians apparently haven't considered is that if the American party polls more than 2 per cent of the vote in the state it thereafter becomes "an established political party within the state..." under Missouri law.

Leaders of the Republican and Democratic parties have conceded the Wallace vote may well add up to 20 or 25 per cent of the Missouri vote in November. That would preserve the American party for the 1970 elections and, possibly, for future elections after that if the party retains enough life to collect 2 per cent of the vote in this state.

Here are the electors for the three presidential tickets: Democratic — James Troupe Sr. of St. Louis, Louise Grant Smith of Clayton, Adolph Buckowitz of St. Louis, James W. Shaffer of Independence, William H. Royster of Kansas City, C. E. Linville Jr. of Skidmore, James P. Landis of Neosho, Elmer E. Reed of Potosi, Harold A. Foley of Florissant, Edward L. Downs of Cape Girardeau, J. V. Conran of New Madrid and Everett S. Vanmatre of Mexico.

Republican — Helen Capron of Normandy, Gerald A. Rimmel of St. Louis, Edna Anderson of St. Louis, Mrs. Kate Powell of Higginsville, Anna T. Neese of Kansas City, Taylor T. Harvey of Kansas City, H. G. Cooper of Springfield, Harold G. Butzer of Jefferson City, William Auchly of Montgomery City, Walter Eggers of Perryville, Thomas Lair of Lebanon and Henry G. LePage of Jefferson City.

American — Margaret Elizabeth Cutrona of St. Louis, Laimonie Bergmanis of Kirkwood, John J. Jarvis of St. Louis, Ted J. Triebach Jr. of

Progress of High-Speed Trains Lags

WASHINGTON (AP) — The plan for high-speed passenger train service in the congested Washington-New York-Boston corridor is chugging along almost a year behind schedule, and there's still no firm starting date.

Federal officials had set last Oct. 29 for the start of the government-supported project with a run between Washington and New York City.

Then they moved the date to early this year.

Then they stopped setting dates. "We've been burned too many times," explains Robert A. Nelson, director of the Department of Transportation's office of high-speed ground transportation. He says the government based its timetable on industry promises that he claims haven't held up.

Officials now are saying, however, that the other half of the project — a run between Boston and New York — should begin soon, perhaps in November. They report that many of the toughest technical and business problems have been overcome.

Nelson says public clamor for better intercity railroad service, combined with recent air traffic delays, has put his agency under the public gun. But he maintains that this kind of interest is healthy too, and needed for success of the project.

Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., a member of the Transportation Appropriations subcommittee, sees it quite another way.

Claiming that serious problems remain in the Washington-New York run, he says that three years after the effort began, "We have nothing to show but a fleet of cars that won't run and a flock of potential passengers who no longer take the project seriously."

The Washington-New York run, to be operated by the Penn Central Railroad, has encountered electrical problems. And the maker of the new cars, the Budd Co., has been entangled in a contract dispute with one of the electrical suppliers, Westinghouse.

The Boston-New York run, handled by the New Haven Railroad, has had problems with noise levels and the ride quality of its trains. And the bankrupt New Haven's future is uncertain.

When they finally begin, the runs are to be operated for two years to determine how much demand there is for such service and how much it costs.

Even if the demonstrations prove as successful as could be hoped, however, officials warn against expecting too much from improved rail passenger service.

Nelson says that without a technological breakthrough, passenger trains will be feasible only for another 10 to 15 years.

One reason officials predict this limited future is that helicopters and other aircraft that can land and take off in small spaces are becoming available for trips of 50 to 250 miles. It is trips of this length that hold the only present hope for intercity trains, officials say.

And even if the new rail service works out well in the heavily populated Northeast Corridor between Washington and Boston, officials say, similar service probably would be feasible only in selected areas elsewhere in the country.

Agnew Aims Views on Student Unrest

BOSTON (AP) — Gov. Spiro T. Agnew says lack of parental discipline and a breakdown of communications between government and youth are causes of student unrest in the United States.

Agnew addressed a $100-a-plate dinner Tuesday night in the Back Bay Sheraton Plaza Hotel only an hour after some 200 young peace demonstrators clashed briefly with police in front of the hotel.

The Republican vice presidential nominee entered the hotel through a back door and did not see the demonstrators. In his speech Agnew said many parents disapprove of the children's actions, "but not enough to do anything about it."

He said a lack of communication between government and the youth of America leads the young people to feel "that the establishment doesn't care. And I think it's time the establishment began to care."

The Maryland governor outlined a program he said would correct this situation: — Internships in government for graduate students. — Summer jobs for young people in governmental agencies. — Frequent meetings between college faculty members and governmental officials to keep communications lines open.

American Education Week opens November 10th. While locally we stress the activities in connection with Boy and Girl Week, Open House, parental visits to the school, etc. at the close of school, we do invite all patrons to reflect upon the importance of education in our society during American Education Week. Schools, as has been said many times, are only as good as people wish them to be. And, in the long run, we can not have a successful society or a strong nation without strong schools. We appreciate the support which this community gives to schools here.

We must admit that the Middle School is not quite as regimented, there seems to be more students roaming the buildings and campuses and what might appear to the observer as some waste of time, but we think the extra freedom may give the youngster an opportunity to make more decisions and to develop as an individual which is also a learning process.

The parent can be most helpful in encouraging the child to realize that school and school work are basic and that attending school must be placed over almost everything else. Stress the idea that illness is about the only excuse for missing school and that everyday school work is important. Again, we invite parents to work with us, especially the teachers, in establishing the very necessary team of student - teacher - parent for the best schooling for each child.

Remember that the nation's clocks, including those in the Sikeston community, will be moved back one hour at 2:00 A.M., Sunday, October 27th. This will mean that although youngsters will report one hour later, in effect, in the morning, they will also remain in school an hour later and some of them may get home near or after dark. We hope that the parents of the children, especially those in the kindergarten, will watch them a bit more carefully when they get off the school buses.

There will be some changes in the Middle School report to parents, in order to meet the changes which have been made there in the schedule. We will try to make these changes as simple and as understandable as possible and we encourage parents to confer with the principals or teachers on any item which may not be clear.

Thursday, October 24th, is designated as United Nations Day. Whatever we may think of some of the short comings of this union of nations, it is a fact that it does have a long list of solid accomplishments toward maintaining peace in the world. It can, of course, be only as strong as its member nations want it to be but some such union, the United Nations, or a similar congress of countries

Our attendance, at least up to this point in the school year, has been unusually good. We think that parents are primarily responsible for their children getting to school each day. Some of our programs may also encourage children to attend, simply because they like school better. For example: we have modified the program at Middle School to give more time to subjects which we consider to be most important. Each student also has some free time that he can use pretty much as he sees

Business Interrupts Onassis' Honeymoon

ATHENS (AP) — Jacqueline is barred from receiving the Kennedy Onassis' bridegroom of four days left her for the first time today, interrupting their honeymoon to fly to Athens on business.

While shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis worked at his downtown Athens office, his bride remained on his palatial yacht Christina moored at Scorpis, his private island in the Ionian Sea 300 miles northwest of Athens.

Onassis was expected to fly back to Scorpis tonight to rejoin his bride.

At present, Onassis is negotiating a $360 million contract with the Greek government for an industrial complex consisting of an oil refinery, aluminum plant and related installations.

At the Vatican, meanwhile, experts on Roman Catholic canon law said no matter what Richard Cardinal Cushing says, the Roman church considers that the new Mrs. Onassis is living with another woman's husband.

Cardinal Cushing, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston and a close friend of the Kennedy family, said Tuesday it was "a lot of nonsense" to say that President Kennedy's widow had excommunicated herself by her marriage to Aristotle Onassis, a divorced member of the Greek Orthodox Church.

It is technically correct that she is not excommunicated, canon lawyers and marriage experts at the Vatican said, but they explained that her church regards the new Mrs. Onassis as a "public sinner" and as such she does not consider the former first lady married to Onassis because it does not recognize his divorce and still considers him married to his first wife, the former Tina Livanos. The first Mrs. Onassis is now married to the Marquess of Blandford, a Briton.

Canon lawyers said there are two courses open to the former Mrs. Kennedy if she wants to get back in the good graces of her church: leave Onassis and receive absolution, or get a ruling from the church courts that his first marriage is invalid and marry him in the Roman church.

There has been speculation that Cardinal Cushing arranged some sort of agreement for the Kennedy-Onassis marriage last weekend, but lawyers at the Vatican said they had no knowledge of anything like that.

The Vatican's press spokesman indicated the Vatican would have nothing to say about the cardinal's remarks.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Onassis and her multimillionaire Greek husband continued to honeymoon on his private island in the Ionian Sea and went for a swim in a secluded cove Wednesday.

The Washington Post reported that Onassis' wedding gift to his new wife was a Blytheville, Arkansas after "priceless set of heart-shaped rubies surrounded by diamonds" her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williams, was valued at $1.2 million.

the stress of demanding that he do better work than he is capable of doing. On the other hand, it is appropriate to insist that he does so as well as he can. Encouragement from the parent, within bounds, is the most important influence on the child. Praise him when praise is indicated and help him, to organize his time, to develop study habits, to do better work when there is a need.

To do this, there must be a cooperative situation involving the students, the teacher and the parent. We hope that parents will confer with the teachers on problems which the child may have. Most teachers will have helpful suggestions.

The parent can be most helpful in encouraging the child to realize that school and school work are basic and that attending school must be placed over almost everything else. Set The Stage For A Colorful Spring Garden By Planting A "Baller" of Daffodils Now

When the stage is set and Spring spotlights the garden, Nature's ballet begins. The slender, graceful stems of daffodils unfolding their golden blossoms form the "ballet corps" of Spring.

Daffodils are the flowers that poets not only named, but also glorified in words that will live forever. These flowers which once grew wild around the Mediterranean Sea have become the "love stars" and daffydowndillies of some of the world's greatest poems. To Shakespeare, daffodils "came before the swallows dived, and through Wordsworth readers have envisioned "a host of golden daffodils."

For gardeners and poets alike, daffodils herald Spring. But, unlike poets, few gardeners are satisfied with merely writing lyrics about these lovely Spring flowers. To the Fall flower-bulb planter "a host of golden daffodils" means the more than 10,000 registered named varieties from which he can choose selections for his Spring garden.

The choice could be bewildering, but the Dutch bulb growers who supply most of the daffodil bulbs offer a simpler solution. They suggest that gardeners become familiar with the major classes or divisions. Individual varieties come and go, and many one-time favorites are now obsolete — but the classes always remain. In fact, the major classes of daffodils are well established, and provide the home gardener with a sound basis for selection.

Classifications

Daffodils are classified by the form of the flowers. Here is an outline of the major classes.

TRUMPET DAFFODILS. These are the familiar large flowers with the long cup (trumpet), and are basic in every Spring garden. They may be yellow or white. They are valued for their size and tradition.

LARGE-CUPPED DAFFODILS. Although the cup is shorter than in the Trumpet daffodils, it is still long in relation to the petals. Both cup and petals may be colored, or only the cup colored and petals white. A daffodil is said to be "colored" when any part is some color other than white. For example, the slender long cup of "Mrs. R. O. Backhouse," a popular daffodil in this group, is a pale apricot, while the petals are ivory-white.

SMALL-CUPPED DAFFODILS. As their name signifies, the cup is small — less than one-third the length of the petals. The petals may be the same color as the cup, or the cup may be colored and set off against white petals. Both cup and petals may be white in other daffodils in this group.

DOUBLE DAFFODILS. Although there may be only a single flower to a stem, the flower is double — that is, the petals may be colored, or only the cup colored and petals white. A daffodil is said to be "colored" when any part is some color other than white. For example, the slender long cup of "Mrs. R. O. Backhouse," a popular daffodil in this group, is a pale apricot, while the petals are ivory-white.

TRIANDRUS HYBRIDS. These daffodils are always white. They produce up to six flowers on one stem and are available in both small-cupped and long-cupped varieties. The petals are usually sharply reflexed, or bent backwards.

CYCLAMINEUS HYBRIDS. These are charming dwarf daffodils with drooping orange-yellow cups, bent sharply backward, and lemon-yellow petals.

JONQUILLA HYBRIDS. The jonquills are familiar flowers, much appreciated for their fragrance. They are characterized by rush-like foliage, and usually have several flowers on one stem. They are often a pale butter-cup yellow.

Must Plant Now

There are other divisions of daffodils, including many wild and hybrid forms. Some varieties bloom very early — others, like those in the Tazetta or Poeticus groups, bloom with the late-flowering tulips. Some varieties multiply faster than others.

The larger daffodil bulbs should be planted six inches deep and six inches apart; while the smaller varieties are planted three inches deep and apart.

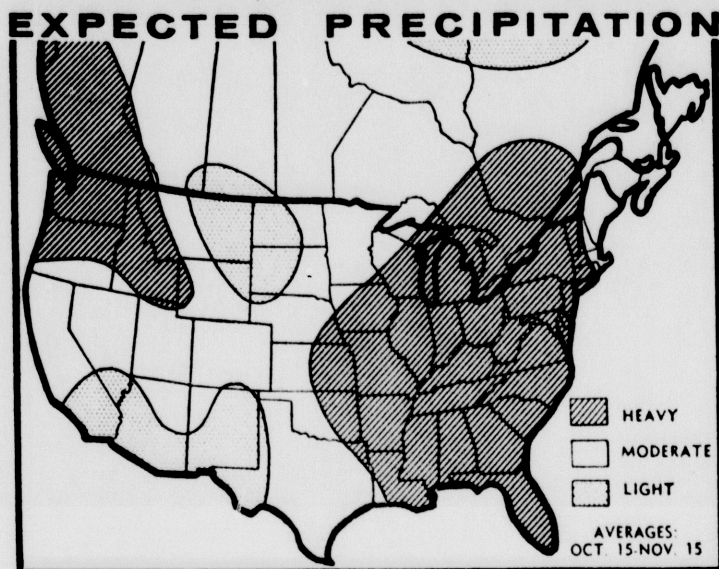

When making your flower-bulb selections for Fall planting, Holland's growers suggest that gardeners plant a few varieties of early and late blossoming daffodils. They should be selected according to their flowering time, either to complement tulips or other Spring bulb flowers — or planted "en masse" where they will be seen to their best advantage.

No matter how you arrange them in the garden, daffodils must be planted this Fall for a "golden ballet" next Spring.

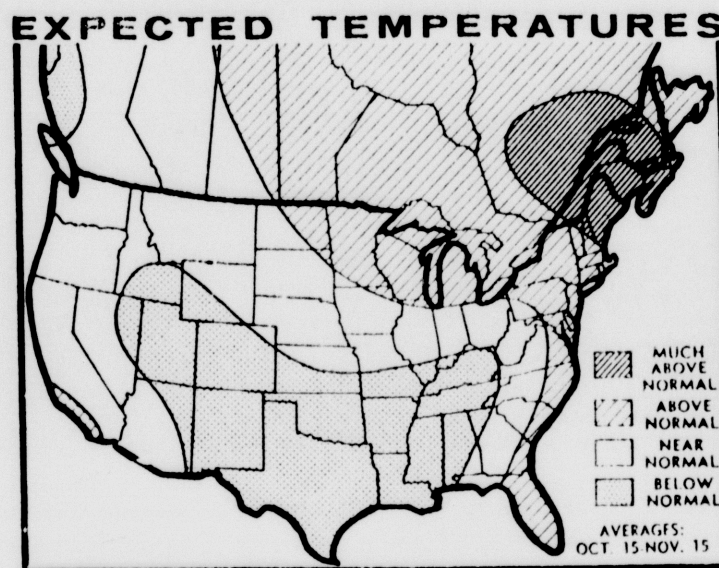

FALL RAINFALL

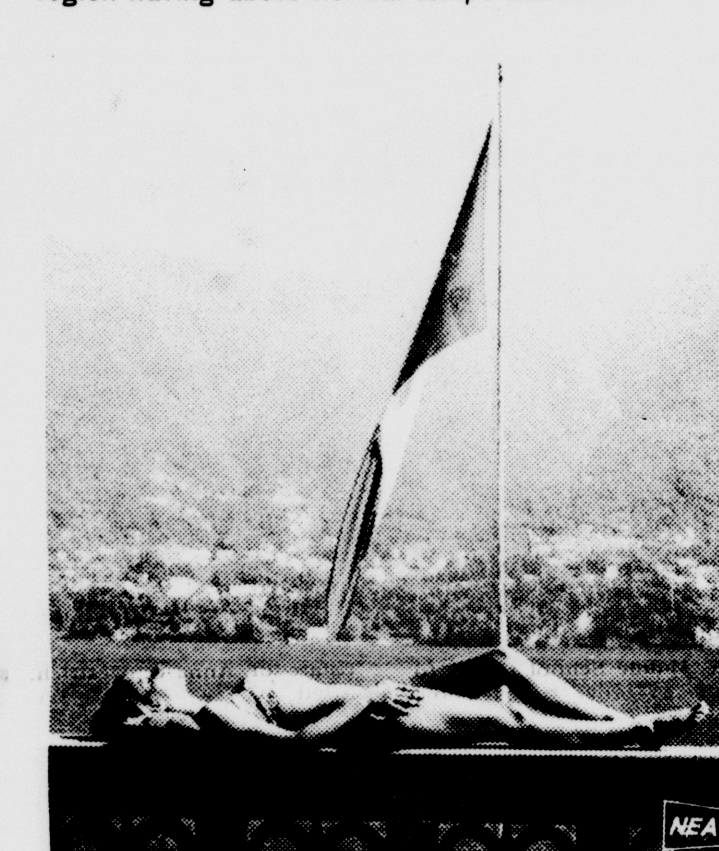

Maps show Weather Bureau's forecast of average temperature, precipitation for period through Nov. 15.

Above-normal precipitation is expected over most of the eastern half of the country with below-normal averages forecast in the far Southwest.

Cooler weather will prevail over most of the nation with only the Atlantic seaboard and Great Lakes region having above-normal temperatures.

STIRRING SIGHT is a view of scenic Lake Como from the Villa d'Este, one of the world's most famous hotels. The picturesque village nestled in the hills bordering the lake in northern Italy, with the flag floating lazily over all, is enough to quicken the pulse of the average observer.

Each state receives as many votes in the Electoral College as the total of its representation in Congress — representatives plus senators. Three additional votes are cast by the District of Columbia. Total is 538. The Big Seven industrial states, primary targets of most presidential campaigns, account for 210 electoral votes, 60 short of the 270 needed to elect a president.

Urged Park Purchase

After taking a walk in the countryside north of New York City in 1844, William Cullen Bryant, the noted poet, urged that a large tract of the land be bought for public use while it was still inexpensive. The land was purchased 12 years later and is now known as Central Park.

Set The Stage For A Colorful Spring Garden By Planting A "Ballet" of Daffodils Now

When the stage is set and Spring spotlights the garden, Nature's ballet begins. The slender, graceful stems of daffodils unfolding their golden blossoms form the "ballet corps" of Spring.

Daffodils are the flowers that poets not only named, but also glorified in words that will live forever. These flowers which once grew wild around the Mediterranean Sea have become the "love stars" and daffydowndillies of some of the world's greatest poems. To Shakespeare, daffodils "came before the swallow dared," and through Wordsworth readers have envisioned "a host of golden daffodils."

For gardeners and poets alike, daffodils herald Spring. But, unlike poets, few gardeners are satisfied with merely writing lyrics about these lovely Spring flowers. To the Fall flower-bulb planter "a host of golden daffodils" means the more than 10,000 registered named varieties from which he can choose selections for his Spring garden.

The choice could be bewildering, but the Dutch bulb growers who supply most of the daffodil bulbs offer a simpler solution. They suggest that gardeners become familiar with the major classes or divisions. Individual varieties come and go, and many one-time favorites are now obsolete—but the classes always remain. In fact, the major classes of daffodils are well established, and provide the home gardener with a sound basis for selection.

Classification

Daffodils are classified by the form of the flowers. Here is an outline of the major classes.

TRUMPET DAFFODILS. These are the familiar large flowers with the long cup (trumpet), and are basic in every Spring garden. They may be yellow or white. They are valued for their size and tradition.

LARGE-CUPPED DAFFODILS. Although the cup is shorter than in the Trumpet daffodils, it is still long in relation to the petals. Both cup and petals may be colored, or only the petals may be colored, or only the petals may be white. A daffodil is said to be "colored" when any part is some color other than white. For example, the slender long cup of "Mrs. R. O. Backhouse," a popular daffodil in this group, is a pale apricot, while the petals are ivory-white.

SMALL-CUPPED DAFFODILS. As their name signifies, the cup is small—less than one-third the length of the petals. The petals may be the same color as the cup, or the cup may be colored and set off against white petals. Both cup and petals may be white in other daffodils in this group.

DOUBLE DAFFODILS. Although there may be only a single flower to a stem, the flower is double—that is, the petals have multiplied to produce a bloom that resembles a full-blown rose. These sumptuous daffodils may be all yellow, yellow-petaled with an orange center, or have a colored cup against white petals.

TRIANDRUS HYBRIDS. These daffodils are always white. They produce up to six flowers on one stem and are available in both small-cupped and long-cupped varieties. The petals are usually sharply reflexed, or bent backwards.

CYCLAMINEUS HYBRIDS. These are charming dwarf daffodils with drooping orange-yellow cups, bent sharply backward, and lemon-yellow petals.

JONQUILLA HYBRIDS. The jonquills are familiar flowers, much appreciated for their fragrance. They are characterized by rush-like foliage, and usually have several flowers on one stem. They are often a pale butter-cup yellow.

Must Plant Now

There are other divisions of daffodils, including many wild and hybrid forms. Some varieties bloom very early—others, like those in the Tazetta or Poeticus groups, bloom with the late-flowering tulips. Some varieties multiply faster than others.

The larger daffodil bulbs should be planted six inches deep and six inches apart; while the smaller varieties are planted three inches deep and apart.

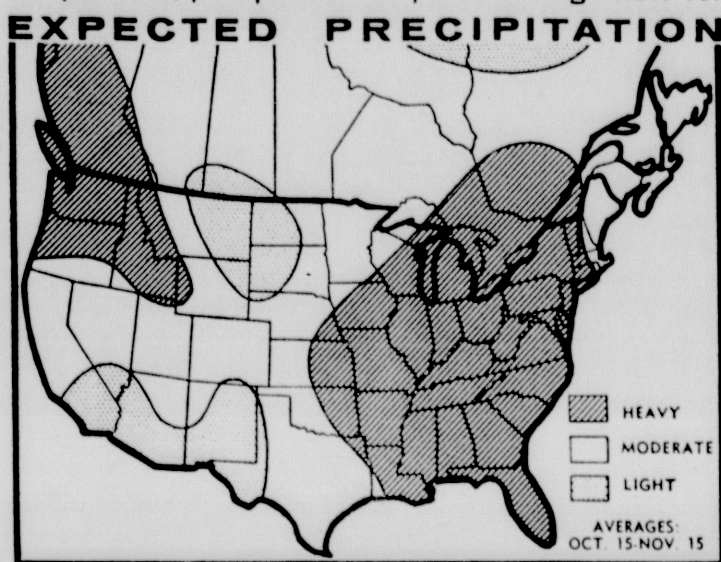

When making your flower-bulb selections for Fall planting, Holland's growers suggest that gardeners plant a few varieties of early and late blossoming daffodils. They should be selected according to their flowering time, either to complement tulips or other Spring bulb flowers—or planted "en masse" where they will be seen to their best advantage.

No matter how you arrange them in the garden, daffodils must be planted this Fall for a "golden ballet" next Spring.

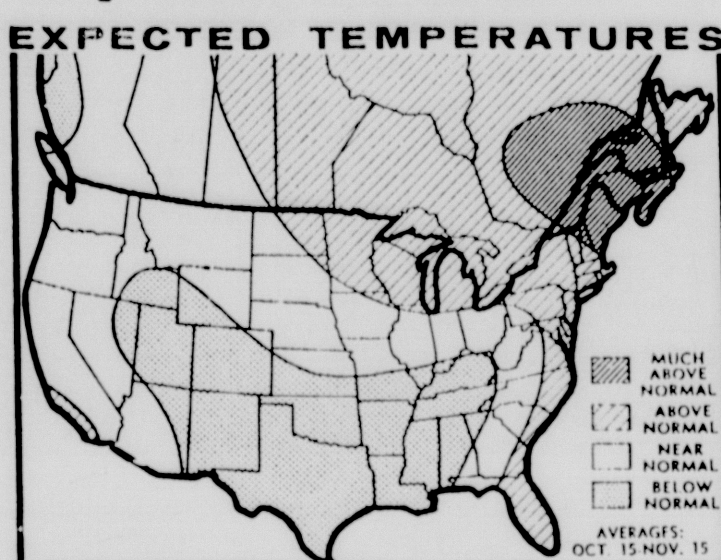

FALL RAINFALL

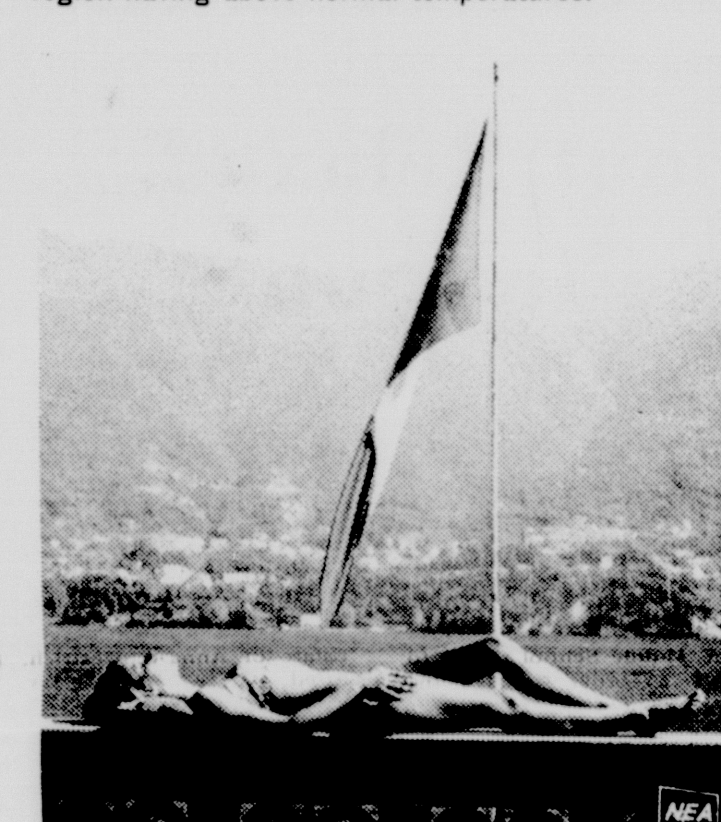

Maps show Weather Bureau's forecast of average temperature, precipitation for period through Nov. 15.

Above-normal precipitation is expected over most of the eastern half of the country with below-normal averages forecast in the far Southwest.

Cooler weather will prevail over most of the nation with only the Atlantic seaboard and Great Lakes region having above-normal temperatures.

STIRRING SIGHT is a view of scenic Lake Como from the Villa d'Este, one of the world's most famous hotels. The picturesque village nestled in the hills bordering the lake in northern Italy, with the flag floating lazily over all, is enough to quicken the pulse of the average observer.

POSITIVE TREATMENT

To the Editor:

I believe a large number of people will be pleased to commend the Clayton police officer who was on duty at Famous Barr and in self-defense killed the convict using a stolen credit card who, when apprehended, drew a pistol.

PRAYER: We praise Thee, O Father, for Thy nearness and Thy steadfast love that will never forsake us. May we accept breakers would do more to curb the gift of Thy love in Jesus Christ than making sure that the Christ and find anew the joy of crook knows about Miranda, life triumphant. Amen.

Ann Landers

Father Worried About Relaxed Standards at College for Son

Dear Ann Landers: My son left for college a few weeks ago. I would like to send the college president a letter but my wife won't let me, not even anonymously. Perhaps if you print it he will see it. Thanks. Just sign me -- Concerned Dad.

Dear College President: I am sending my boy to college because it is better than sending him to Vietnam. He is a good boy but I'm worried because from what I hear and read, colleges aren't what they used to be. For example, our son says cars were not allowed on your campus but the kids decided they wanted cars and they told the administration to go jump in the lake. Your reply, Mr. College President, was, "We would prefer that students not bring cars but if they bring them the old rules will not be enforced."

I hope you have some faculty members of fine character who can inspire young people. From what I hear, several of your teachers line up with the students and make life hell for the administration. I also hear your dorms are "co-ed" till all hours and the students laughingly call the campus a bordello subsidized by the taxpayers.

Above all, I hope you will keep in mind that I can't support this kid for the rest of his life. Please give him some vocational training -- CONCERNED DAD.

Dear Dad: Here's your letter but I doubt that you will be swamped with replies from college presidents. Will you settle for a student? If so, I'll print the best response.

Dear Ann: I love my wife but I don't know what to do about her lying. I give her my paycheck and take a few dollars for myself. She is supposed to pay all the bills.

I'm a person who likes to keep my credit clean. My wife dribbles away money and hides the unpaid bills and dunning notices. When I call her on it she cries and says she "forgot."

What should I do? I hate to insult her by taking over myself. -- RICK

Dear Rick: You won't insult her, you'll relieve her. She is clearly incompetent for this job and you're a boob to let her wreck your credit. Give her an allowance and pay the bills yourself.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is being married this fall and has decided she does not want children at her wedding reception. Sue says too many weddings have been ruined by noisy kids and she is not going to allow anything to mar the beauty of her day. She is emphatic on the point that there will be no one under high school age.

I agree with my daughter's point of view but wonder how to tell people tactfully when they ask if their young children are included. -- V.E.M.

Dear V.E.M.: People of taste do not try to bring children unless the invitation specifically says "And Family" on the envelope. If someone asks, simply say, "Sorry, Sue does not want anyone under high school age and we are respecting her wishes since this is HER day."

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

If You Were the Judge

Landlord Can't Bug Tenants' Bedroom

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

In the suspicious eyes of their landlord, Bobby and Carol seemed too lovey-dovey to be man and wife. Consequently, to insure the propriety of his building, the unromantic landlord decided to investigate the situation, to determine whether Bobby and Carol were actually married, by having a listening device installed in the bedroom of his cooing tenants. It was planted in a bowl of flowers and when Bobby inadvertently discovered that his flowers could hear as well as smell, he sued his landlord for snooping.

"There is nothing more embarrassing than to learn that someone has been listening in on your bedroom conversation," he complained in court. "The fact is, since my wife and I found out about it, our complexions have changed from white to rosy red."

"I was only doing my duty," responded the landlord. "As the owner of the building, I had an obligation to make sure that no improper conduct took place on my property. Besides," he pointed out, "there's been no proof that the 'bug' in the flowers actually worked. Since there is no evidence that anything was overheard, I can't be held responsible for the alleged eavesdropping."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the unromantic landlord pay?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that what a married couple do or say in the privacy of their bedroom is their own business so long as they are not hurting anyone else; that by placing a listening device in their bedroom, concluded the judge, the landlord, by that act, intruded upon the solitude and seclusion of his tenants.

(Based upon a 1965 New Hampshire Supreme Court Decision)

QUICK QUIZ

Q—When is Mars most favorably located for telescopic observation?

A—At intervals of about two years and 50 days, Mars and earth are on the same side of the sun and closest to each other. At such times Mars is most favorably located for telescopic observation.

Q—Can we see all the stars in the vicinity of the sun?

A—There are about 30 stars within 15 light years of the sun. Only seven of these are bright enough to be seen without a telescope.

Q—What bird is often called the "rain prophet"?

A—The American cuckoo.

Q—Who first used the name "rubber"?

A—In 1770, the English chemist, Joseph Priestly, discovered that the material could be used as an eraser to rub out pencil marks. From this use, we get the name "rubber."

Fall, with its crisp weather and unusual dryness, ended abruptly a long breathing spell of the Fire Department with four disastrous fires that struck with uncanny suddenness -- all within 24 hours-- Tuesday and Wednesday, badly damaging two large residences and a cotton storage house and completely destroying two large barns. Defective flues are thought responsible for blazes which gutted homes occupied by Mrs. Iva Gestring on Matthews and by Jake Goldstein on Ruth. Fire in dry grass and leaves set fire to two barns and endangered several other buildings on South Kingshighway. A blaze in a cotton house of the Sikeston Gin caused heavy damage.

Out of 109 applications from all over the United States, only 11 cities qualified under the specifications of an eastern foundation which provides most of the funds to build a hospital yearly in deserving localities. Sikeston is one of the 11 cities, Robert Jordan, who is a representative of the foundation informed a group of civic leaders at a special meeting in the office of J. S. Kevil Tuesday night.

God shows his love for us in officer who was on duty at that while we were yet sinners. He is a good boy but I'm worried because from what I hear and read, colleges aren't what they used to be. For example, our son says cars were not allowed on our campus but the kids decided they wanted cars and they told the administration to go jump in the lake. Your reply, Mr. College President, was: "We would prefer that students not bring cars but if they bring them the old rules will not be enforced."

I hope you have some faculty members of fine character who can inspire young people. From

Ann Landers

Father Worried About Relaxed Standards at College for Son

Dear Ann Landers: My son left for college a few weeks ago. I would like to send the college president a letter but my wife won't let me, not even anonymously. Perhaps if you print it he will see it. Thanks. Just sign me -- Concerned Dad.

Dear College President: I am sending my boy to college because it is better than sending him to Vietnam. He is a good boy but I'm worried because from what I hear and read, colleges aren't what they used to be. For example, our son says cars were not allowed on our campus but the kids decided they wanted cars and they told the administration to go jump in the lake. Your reply, Mr. College President, was: "We would prefer that students not bring cars but if they bring them the old rules will not be enforced."

I hope you have some faculty members of fine character who can inspire young people. From what I hear, several of your teachers line up with the students and make life hell for the administration. I also hear your dorms are "co-ed" till all hours and the students laughingly call the campus a bordello subsidized by the taxpayers.

Above all, I hope you will keep in mind that I can't support this kid for the rest of his life. Please give him some vocational training -- CONCERNED DAD.

Dear Dad: Here's your letter but I doubt that you will be swamped with replies from college presidents. Will you settle for a student? If so, I'll print the best response.

Dear Ann: I love my wife but I don't know what to do about her lying. I give her my paycheck and take a few dollars for myself. She is supposed to pay all the bills. I'm a person who likes to keep my credit clean. My wife dribbles away money and hides the unpaid bills and dunning notices. When I call her on it she cries and says she "forgot."

What should I do? I hate to insult her by taking over myself. -- RICK

Dear Rick: You won't insult her, you'll relieve her. She is clearly incompetent for this job and you're a boob to let her wreck your credit. Give her an allowance and pay the bills yourself.

I agree with my daughter's point of view but wonder how to tell people tactfully when they ask if their young children are included. --V.E.M.

Dear V.E.M.: People of taste do not try to bring children unless the invitation specifically says "And Family" on the envelope. If someone asks, simply say, "Sorry, Sue does not want anyone under high school age and we are respecting her wishes since this is HER day."

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Fall, with its crisp weather and unusual dryness, ended abruptly a long breathing spell of the Fire Department with four disastrous fires that struck with uncanny suddenness -- all within 24 hours-- Tuesday and Wednesday, badly damaging two large residences and a cotton storage house and completely destroying two large barns. Defective flues are thought responsible for blazes which gutted homes occupied by Mrs. Iva Gestring on Matthews and by Jake Goldstein on Ruth. Fire in dry grass and leaves set fire to two barns and endangered several other buildings on South Kingshighway. A blaze in a cotton house of the Sikeston Gin caused heavy damage.

Out of 109 applications from all over the United States, only 11 cities qualified under the specifications of an eastern foundation which provides most of the funds to build a hospital yearly in deserving localities. Sikeston is one of the 11 cities, Robert Jordan, who is a representative of the foundation informed a group of civic leaders at a special meeting in the office of J. S. Kevil Tuesday night.

If You Were the Judge

Landlord Can't Bug Tenants' Bedroom

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

In the suspicious eyes of their landlord, Bobby and Carol seemed too lovey-dovey to be man and wife. Consequently, to insure the propriety of his building, the unromantic landlord decided to investigate the situation, to determine whether Bobby and Carol were actually married, by having a listening device installed in the bedroom of his cooing tenants. It was planted in a bowl of flowers and, when Bobby inadvertently discovered that his flowers could hear as well as smell, he sued his landlord for snooping.

"There is nothing more embarrassing than to learn that someone has been listening in on your bedroom conversation," he complained in court. "The fact is, since my wife and I found out about it, our complexions have changed from white to rosy red."

"I was only doing my duty," responded the landlord. "As the owner of the building, I had an obligation to make sure that no improper conduct took place on my property. Besides," he pointed out, "there's been no proof that the 'bug' in the flowers actually worked. Since there is no evidence that anything was overheard, I can't be held responsible for the alleged eavesdropping."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the unromantic landlord pay?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that what a married couple do or say in the privacy of their bedroom is their own business so long as they are not hurting anyone else; that by placing a listening device in their bedroom, concluded the judge, the landlord, by that act, intruded upon the solitude and seclusion of his tenants.

(Based upon a 1965 New Hampshire Supreme Court Decision)

In 1905 Henry Ford wanted to find out if the horseless carriage was a poor man's necessity or a rich man's toy. So he built the huge $2500 6-cylinder Model K and the little $500 N, forerunner of the Model "T". The N and the K stand side by side among 150 antique cars on display at the Harold Warp Pioneer Village in south central Nebraska.

Airlines Seek Route Shifts In Midwest

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thirteen airlines attempted to persuade the Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday that they should be awarded routes serving all or part of the distances between 10 cities from Texas to the Midwest.

The airlines argued before the board in challenging an examiner's decision in the complicated case.

"Some of the routes have not been changed for 30 years," a spokesman for American Airlines told the board. Many of the North-South routes in the nation's midsection have been served by single carriers while air traffic in the area has risen at a far steeper rate than for the country generally, he said.

The cities for which additional service is contemplated are Chicago, Memphis, Tenn., Nashville, Tenn., New Orleans, San Antonio, Tex., Detroit, Kansas City, Dallas, St. Louis, and Houston.

Frontier Airlines asked the board not to set a precedent in opening up a new route for a small carrier, such as Trans-Texas Airways, in a territory already served by a subsidized carrier such as itself. The examiner recommended that Trans-Texas be awarded a Kansas City-Dallas route, in competition with Braniff Airways. The Bureau of Operating Rights said it felt Frontier already had established its rights in the area and should get the route instead of Trans-Texas.

A spokesman for Frontier said his lines carries six times as many passengers as the Randles, Mrs. Alvin Daniel, Bell examiner's records indicate City, Mrs. Harley Phillips, because it absorbed many routes Algonquin, Ill., Mrs. Jack Callow, Oran, and Mrs. Robert Harris, Flint, Mich.; three sons, Ross Boley, Vanduser, John Boley, Geneva, Fla. and A. B. Perkins; a sister Mrs. Jack Boley, Perkins; and two brothers, Fred Seaman and Ed Seaman, all of Arkansas, 31 grandchildren and 34 great-grandchildren.

She had lived in Oran for 20 years, and was a member of the Church of Christ of Bell City.

The body is at Bisplinghoff Funeral Home in Chaffee where services were conducted Thursday at 10 a.m. by the Rev. Campbell of Bell City, was assisted by the Rev. Raymond Duffey of Bloomfield.

Burial was in Forrest Hill cemetery near Morley.

Vietnam Death Toll Drops

SAIGON (AP) - The U. S. Command today reported the lowest weekly American death toll in more than 14 months, hard fighting in the demilitarized zone in which at least 112 North Vietnamese were killed, and the loss of seven U. S. aircraft in South Vietnam in the past two days.

The total of South Vietnamese and enemy casualties also dropped last week, and the reductions resulted from the lull in ground action which has prevailed for three and a half weeks.

U. S. spokesmen said despite the fighting along the northern frontier and the aircraft losses, it was too early to say whether the lull was ending. They said the fighting in the DMZ was the result of allied operations, not the enemy's initiative.

The seven aircraft lost to enemy groundfire included a fighter-bomber, three light helicopters. Five men were killed and five were wounded.

Although there was still no word that Washington and Hanoi had agreed on a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam so as to advance the Paris peace talks, the South Vietnamese government appeared to be making a gesture toward getting the talks moving. It announced it would release 140 prisoners of war before the end of the month, the largest POW release of the war.

The total of American combat dead last week was the lowest since the week of Aug. 6-12, 1967, when 82 Americans were killed in action. And the total of 589 Americans who the U. S. Command said were wounded in combat last week was the lowest since the week of Dec. 24-30, 1967, when the total was 437.

South Vietnamese and enemy casualties last week also were the lowest reported in many months.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 132 government troops killed, the smallest number since the week of Oct. 15-21, 1967. The U. S. Command said 1,243 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed last week, the lowest number since Sept. 24-30, 1967.

South Vietnamese infantrymen and U. S. Marine tanks moved into the demilitarized zone behind a strike by U. S. B52 bombers Wednesday, blasted about 200 North Vietnamese troops from their bunkers and sent them fleeing after 2 1/2 hours of Florissant got a plaque for being first in the over 10,000 class. Carthage was second and Fulton third.

A CERTIFICATE of merit for outstanding achievement by a metropolitan city went to St. Louis for the work of its beautification commission.

A special award for an unincorporated area went to the South St. Louis County Citizens for Community Betterment.

Recognized as five-star cities for their work in education, transportation, utilities, community services and community planning were Fredericktown and Lincoln.

Florissant also got the governor's "Beckoning Trails" award for roadside beautification. Communities awarded case prizes from $600 for second place to $100 for fifth included: 2,500,500 - Fredericktown second, Flat River third, Bethany fourth and Shrewsbury fifth.

5,000-10,000 - Caruthersville second, Maryville third, Nevada fourth and Webb City fifth.

TEN INDIVIDUALS won recognition for outstanding leadership in towns participating in the community betterment program. They included:

Mrs. Viola Blechle of Perryville, and the Rev. Stanley B. Hopper of Fredericktown.

At the awards banquet, Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said his idea of "creative localism" is to bring government closer to the people, the same as in his drive to bring federal programs back to state level.

In creative localism, he said, "the state government's role is to provide assistance, not to dictate, and this is the way it should be. This keeps government close to the people and responsive to their needs and desires."

"Our cities and counties must be given the authority, by the legislature, to govern their own affairs. The state must increase its financial assistance to local units of government, and increase its financial assistance offered through normal state programs which benefits local areas."

He said active, healthy cities and counties, ready to meet local responsibilities, are essential to an economically strong and progressive state.

Although there was still no word that Washington and Hanoi had agreed on a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam so as to advance the Paris peace talks, the South Vietnamese government appeared to be making a gesture toward getting the talks moving. It announced it would release 140 prisoners of war before the end of the month the largest POW release of the war.

The total of American combat dead last week was the lowest since the week of Aug. 6-12, 1967, when 82 Americans were killed in action. And the total of 589 Americans who the U. S. Command said were wounded in combat last week was the lowest since the week of Dec. 24-30, 1967, when the total was 437.

South Vietnamese and enemy casualties last week also were the lowest reported in many months.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 132 government troops killed, the smallest number since the week of Oct. 15-21, 1967. The U. S. Command said 1,243 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed last week, the lowest number since Sept. 24-30, 1967.

South Vietnamese infantrymen and U. S. Marine tanks moved into the demilitarized zone behind a strike by U. S. B-52 bombers Wednesday, blasted about 200 North Vietnamese troops from their bunkers and sent them fleeing after 2 1/2 hours of

It was the heaviest fighting along South Vietnam's northern frontier in six weeks.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam the 3 1/2-week-old lull in the ground fighting continued, and a U. S. spokesman said the flareup in the DMZ did not mean the enemy had broken the lull. He pointed out that the fighting resulted from a U. S. and South Vietnamese sweep into the area, not from a North Vietnamese initiative.

Jet fighter-bombers and artillery pounded the North Vietnamese after the ground forces drove them out, and a sweep of the battlefield produced 95 enemy bodies, U. S. spokesmen said. Seventeen more enemy dead were found in craters opened up by 180 tons of high explosives dropped by six B-52 bombers just before the ground force moved in.

Allied losses were three South Vietnamese soldiers killed, 27 wounded, and three U. S. Marines wounded, spokesmen said.

The fighting was in coastal marshlands in the southern half of the DMZ, four miles above Gio Linh, the eastern anchor of a string of allied bases along the northern frontier.
